Deeds Would Be Welcome The Dragon Turns, Bites A Fighting American To Sea in a Sieve

—By Arthur Brisbane—

ENGLAND, GERMANY, Japan, China, and every country are talking about Secretary Stimson's threat to fortify our possessions in the Pacific, the Philippines and Guam, under the very nose of Japan, since Japan's attack on China violates and puts an end to the agreement that followed the silly Washington conference.

If the United States did fortify Guam and the Philippines, and establish in both places air bases of first-class magnitude, fully equipped to punish any foolish attack on us, that would practically do away with any danger from Asia.

If, now, words should be followed by deeds, as Theodore Roosevelt would say, and if we should fortify Guam and the Philippines in addition to talking about it, many Americans would be well pleased.

The Chinese dragon or worm turned yesterday and surprised Japan. Chinese big guns in Chapei began hammering the Japanese in Hongkew, and the Chinese were reported to have recaptured the ground lost at Kiangwan.

The Japanese are rushing 50,000 more men to Shanghai, and hope to finish their task there before the Chinese get reinforcements. Poor railroads and lack of good highways make it difficult to move men in China.

It turns out that the "lone Chinese pilot" who attacked six Japanese airplanes, all by himself, was a young American, Robert M. Short, of Lakeview, Wash.

This young American, member of the United States Reserve Corps, sympathizing with the Chinese or craving excitement, enlisted as a fighter for China about a week ago and, in an American plane, owned by the Chinese, went up after three Japanese bombing planes, piloted by three Japanese pursuit planes. He had brought down a Japanese plane and pilot two days before, and was himself killed by gunfire from the three pursuit planes. China, it is said, will give the young American a highly honorable funeral and has appointed him posthumously a colonel.

Washington describes Senators Borah and Hiram Johnson and Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania discussing politics, and "what is the best thing to do with President Hoover." Reporters are asking which of the three will try to take the Republican nomination from the President.

Governor Pinchot might try it. There is much of the knight errant in him. Senators Borah and Hiram Johnson are practical, and will not imitate "The Jumblies," of whom it is said: "They went to sea in a sieve, they did;
In a sieve they went to sea.

To try to take the nomination from the President would be twice as foolish as going to sea in a sieve.

Three detectives from Cleveland and two from the New York force captured a difficult customer in New York yesterday. He walked into a trap. The five that had waited pounced upon him. One bored the muzzle of a revolver into his neck, the other four, with fists and revolver butts, conquered him, and "Smiling Joe" Filkowski, called "Cleveland's most dangerous gunman," was a prisoner.

Filkowski has a record, which includes disarming and capturing two Chicago policemen and then using their automobile to kidnap them. He wounded also other policemen in Ohio. In his cell, much humiliated, he muttered between lips puffed up from the blows of detectives: "They surprised me, or I wouldn't be here. I can pull a gun faster than you can wink."

Of two incidents in the Japanese attack on Kiangwan, one made Chinese smile, the other did not. The first Japanese planes, flying over early in the morning, dropped big, heavy containers, and no explosions followed. Observing it, onlookers smiled. Immediately afterwards, more Japanese planes dropped small bombs, and instantly savage fires started wherever they struck.

The first "bombs" dropped were big drums containing gasoline and no explosives. The small bombs, dropped later, set fire to the gasoline.

That interests the western world, because it is fighting of that kind, by fire, that would most easily win a war against Asiatic populations, whose houses are built chiefly of bamboo, paper and light wood.

Flinders Petrie, back from his 52d expedition to Palestine, tells how, 4000 years ago, that land, not yet "holy" since Christianity hadn't started, was terrified by

51 POLICEMEN SHIFTED IN EVERETT

Only 4 Escape Shakeup; Chief Orders War on Bandits, Booze, Slot Machines

All but four of Everett's 55 policemen were shifted after a stern lecture today in the biggest shakeup in the history of that city.

The transfers were ordered jointly by Mayor Michael C. O'Neil and Chief William C. Hill. The latter delivered the lecture.

"GET OUT AND WORK"

"It's about time the police went out and did some work," Chief Hill said, as he lined up day and night forces in the guard room.

"The uniforms you wear were designed for something besides keeping you warm. And I want you men to realize that you are not walking your beats just for the exercise.

"There is one patrolman among you who has not made an arrest in the last two years. Two others have made but one arrest each.

"HOLDUPS MUST STOP"

"From now on these holdups must stop. I want a tabulation of all booze joints and reports on what you are doing about them.

"Slot machines must go, absolutely, and I shall expect to see some real police work from now on.

"A few, and very few, officers among you are making all the arrests in the department."

Flying Couple Lost 11 Days Are Safe

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 26 (AP)—The blizzard-stricken country of northern British Columbia, in which William Graham and Mrs. Edna Christofferson had been missing 11 days, gave up the two today and they flew safely out to civilization at Atlin.

The couple had dropped out of sight on a flight to Point Barrow to search for an abandoned trading ship and salvage furs aboard it.

Disabled Danish Steamer Is Safe

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 26 (AP)—The Danish steamer Aggersund, reported on Wednesday as in distress 590 miles off the Irish coast, is in safer condition today and her list has decreased, according to message received by the East Coast Radio Signal Service.

Tattoo Girl Near Death by Poison

Helen J. Hutchinson, 24, Roxbury blonde whose butterfly-tattooed knee was a center of interest in court five years ago, swallowed poison today and is in a serious condition at City Hospital.

Her mother, Mrs. Margaret H. Hutchinson, of Oakland st., Roxbury, said the girl went to a drug store, bought poison tablets and swallowed them after quarreling with her sister, Mrs. Dora Ross, over the care of the latter's baby daughter, Patsy.

Five years ago Miss Hutchinson charged that William F. Oliver and Henry McHugh of Winchester, had attacked her on the night of Feb. 2, 1927. They were brought to trial in Middlesex court and the case became sensational when defense counsel introduced photos of the girl showing the plainly tattooed butterfly on her left leg.

On the stand Miss Hutchinson admitted being tattooed on the leg and back by a John Brown, a friend, but that she had only done it for fun. Oliver and McHugh were acquitted.

WIFE HELD IN MAN'S DEATH

Mrs. Annie White, 31, was arrested as a suspicious person today after her husband, William White 38, had been found dead in a pool of blood in a lodging house at 54 Waltham st., South End.

Dr. Timothy Leary, medical examiner, said he could not tell until he made an autopsy whether the blood came from a wound on the victim's head or from a hemorrhage that might have resulted from poison.

Mrs. White said she found her husband dead upon returning to their home after being away all night. She told conflicting stories regarding her absence, police said.

Missing Bride and Man Are Arrested

Mrs. Rose Chase, 24, who vanished two years ago as a bride from her Concord, N. H., home, was arrested today in a house in Rochester st., South End. Arrested with her was William LeDuc, who, she told police, is the father of her two small children.

LeDuc, police said, had been living there under the name of Lester Chase, the deserted bridegroom.

The family had been on the city aid roll for $11 a week, and authorities will seek a complaint for

Flames Sweep Two Dorchester Stores

Fire, which police say was caused by a defective flue, caused damage estimated at $3000 in a one-story building occupied by two stores at 170A-172 Neponset ave., Dorchester, early today.

Officials believe the fire started in the grocery store of Edward Sahajian, and from there spread to the neighboring store, owned by Benito Bizanne.

PLAN DRIVE ON RADICAL DISTURBERS

Police today chased six garment strikers from the Traders' Building, 35 Kneeland st., where 200 men and girls remain at work, despite efforts of the union members to get them to quit.

The strikers, according to the police, had slipped up the stairs singly and met on the eighth floor, intending to invade one of the shops.

Peace loomed on the Cambridge strike front as police authorities were preparing to make wholesale arrests, if necessary, to maintain order on the picket lines.

Alfred Scola, chairman of the strike committee in Cambridge, claimed that of the three shops affected in that city, two had come to an agreement with the workers and there was a good prospect of the third doing so.

There was no sign of surrender on the part of the Boston manufacturers, and union chiefs said their followers would not give in. They demand standard wages and a halt to the alleged sub-letting of contracts to out-of-town "sweatshops."

Pickets appeared on the lines today wearing arm bands, identifying them as members of the non-radical union, affiliated with the A. F. of L., as agreed with police, who intend to disperse trouble-making "reds."

Mass picketing, either by "reds" or non-radicals, will not be permitted, police officials warned.

Warrants for two more alleged trouble-makers will be asked by police of Station 4, Lagrange st., who, late yesterday, arrested Jacob Fox of Glendale rd., Dorchester, charged with assault and battery on Benedicto Bertolino, a garment manufacturer, during an argument at Washington and Stuart sts.

36 Arrests Made in New York Strike

New York, Feb. 26 (INS)—Thirty-six striking dressmakers were arrested today shortly after picketing was resumed in the garment district. There were 15 women and 17 men. All were charged with disorderly conduct in attempting to prevent workers from entering places of employment.

3 Burned to Death as Fire Sweeps Home

Campbellton, N. B., Feb. 26 (AP)—Three persons were burned to death and a fourth seriously injured today when fire destroyed the home of Patrick Loubert.

The dead were Mrs. Loubert, 76; Alma Allan, 38, a dressmaker, and Joyce Doucette, four. Fred Doucette, father of the little girl, was hurt when he jumped from a second-story window to get a ladder to rescue the baby.

Ruth Judd's Parents Seek Home Near Jail

Florence, Ariz., Feb. 26 (AP)—The Rev. and Mrs. Harvey J. McKinnell, parents of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted trunk murderess, today were seeking a small house to occupy until their daughter is hanged in the nearby prison, or is granted a new trial.

Permission to visit their daughter for "an hour or so each Sunday" has been granted them.

Mistrial for Broderick

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—A mistrial was declared today in the case of State Banking Commissioner Joseph A. Broderick, who was on trial for neglect of duty for not closing the Bank of the United States earlier than he did.

THREE HURT IN ICY STREETS

Icy streets and sidewalks caused numerous accidents today as autos and pedestrians skidded and slipped.

After a wild ride backwards for a quarter of a mile on the icy surface of Longfellow hill, Wellesley, the two occupants of a furniture van were seriously bruised when the truck crashed into a telephone pole.

The injured, William Hanscombe, 25, of Dover st., and Aubrey Godfrey, 25, of East Brookline st., South End, were taken to Newton Hospital. Trolley traffic was tied up.

Harold G. Nicols, 31, of Locust st., Holliston, suffered a fractured cheekbone when his car skidded into a pole at Watertown and Walnut sts., Newtonville. He was taken to Newton hospital.

The temperature was considerably above the extreme cold of yesterday, and rain washed away some of the snow that fell during the night, but the frozen streets will remain until the sun gets out.

Plenty of snow still remains in the New England winter sports region, promising another thrilling week-end for enthusiasts.

Bandit Victim's Skull Fractured

Benjamin A. Gallant, 26, of 42 Winslow rd., Dorchester, received a fracture of the skull last night when slugged with a revolver butt by a bandit who forced him to the cellar of the drug store at 2038 Massachusetts ave., Cambridge.

The gunman asked the clerk for a narcotic drug. Before Gallant could question him, he drew a revolver. The safe and medicine shelves were ransacked, but the cash register was untouched.

Robbers Climb Tree to Loot Safe in Melrose Plant

While 35 bakers worked on the floor beneath, safe robbers chiseled open a safe on the third floor of a Melrose baking plant early today and escaped with $200.

The thieves made their getaway when they overheard one of the bakers telephone to police that someone was in the building.

The thieves climbed a tree outside the plant at Grove and Main sts., swung with a rope to the roof, cut a hole in the skylight and made their way to the office to get at the safe.

SENATE TO CALL BEAR RAIDERS

Washington, Feb. 26 (INS)—A number of New York brokers whom he described to President Hoover today as "bear raiders" on the New York stock market, will be subpoenaed to appear before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee tomorrow, Senator Walcott (R) of Connecticut, said at the White House today.

The committee will consider various bills designed to prohibit or limit short selling of commodities.

Economy May Halt Power Investigation

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Federal Trade Commission may have to drop its investigation of the electric power industry unless something is done about the economy ideas of the budget bureau.

The budget cut $390,000 off the commission's request for $1,626,000 for the next fiscal year. Commissioner Humphrey said this would involve dismissal of about 180 employes.

When opened it was found to contain 18 cents and a rubber stamp, the property of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. When stolen from a branch office at 360 Columbus rd., on February 14, it contained $600.

BOY DEATH CASE TO JURY TODAY

Final arguments in the trial of William Irving Brown, 18, of Newton, charged with the murder of his stepfather, began today in Middlesex Superior Court, after intensive cross-examination of the boy would up the testimony. The case may go to the jury tonight.

Young Brown denied he his his stepfather, Richard B. Wilson, 42, before the latter reached for a shotgun as they argued in the police in Church st., Newton. He reiterated previous denials of statements made in two alleged confessions.

"Did you move or drag the body?" asked Asst. Dist. Attty. Crafts.

"I certainly did not," said the boy.

FIRE IN FEAR

The defendant's mother, who yesterday testified in his behalf, was a spectator at the trial for the first time today. Previously she had remained in the corridor.

She sat huddled in a seat at one side of the room and kept her face turned from the other spectators.

She had testified to cruelties by her husband, and it was during her story that the slayer showed his only emotion since the trial started.

His own story, that Wilson called his mother vile names, attacked him and the reached for the gun, he stuck to despite today's grilling. He sai dthe gun first went off in the struggle for is possesion. He fired ag'ain out of fear.

"Do you deny that you told police you had punched your stepfather just prior to the shooting?" he was asked.

"I do deny it; I never told them that," he replied.

WOMAN ON STAND.

Miss Marjorie P. Perkins of Newton was called by the State to testify in rebuttal that Wilson had a reputation for peacefulness, in her opinion, but further testimony by her was excluded. She said she worked in the same building.

Chief Justice Horace Harvey of the Province of Alberta, Canada, sat on the bench for half an hour, while Peter White, crown advocate-general of Toronto, sat at the press table. They are in this country investigating the sinking of the Gypsum Queen in war times, a dispute having arisen as to whether the vessel was torpedoed.

GAINS ARE SMALL IN BITTER FIGHT

Each Side Claims Victory; the Losses Reported Heavy; Planes Destroyed

BULLETIN

Shanghai, Feb. 26 (AP)—Japanese troops, advancing against machine gun fire, surrounded the town of Kiangwan again a few minutes before midnight tonight.

The Chinese resistance was so stubborn that starvation appeared to be the only weapon which could succeed against them.

The spokesman said the Japanese losses in the past 24 hours of heavy fighting were 120 killed and wounded.

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press)

Shanghai, Feb. 26—Japanese naval aviators, equipped with heavy bombs, began a sweeping campaign today to destroy all Chinese aviation fields over a wide district near Shanghai, while on the short sector northwest of Kiangwan the Japanese delivered another fierce attack on the Chinese without gaining much ground.

A Japanese naval spokesman said late this afternoon that Japanese fliers bombed the Chinese airdrome at Hangchow this morning, destroying a number of planes, and that they continued their raids, bombing three additional fields later in the day.

PLANES SHOT DOWN

Upwards of a dozen Chinese planes were destroyed by bombs, he said, on the ground and three were brought down from the air by machine guns. The Japanese lost one plane which was forced down in Hangchow bay, where it sank.

The chief attack on the Kiangwan front, officials at Japanese headquarters said, was delivered by a single company, which asked permission to wreak revenge on the Chinese for the killing of their captain in yesterday's battle. They went over the top in a fierce pursuit, led by a second lieutenant

NATIONS ASK JAPS TO KEEP WAR OUT OF FOREIGN AREA

LAND TROOPS OUTSIDE, IS PLEA

U. S., France, England and Italy Act to Stop Fighting in Settlement

Tokio, Feb. 26 (AP)—The American, British, French and Italian ambassadors to Japan visited the foreign office today and communicated to Foreign Minister Yoshizawa the desire of their governments that Japan do its utmost to keep the military operations at Shanghai outside the borders of the international settlement.

PROTEST LANDING SITE.

The memoranda were not identical but were of similar tenor. It was understood they expressed appreciation for the Japanese command's efforts to keep the fighting area outside the Settlement and hoped it would continue to do so.

They also requested that any further Japanese troops arriving at Shanghai be disembarked outside the Settlement.

The Japanese were asked to move the warships lying in the Whangpoo off the International Settlement to positions where they would not attract Chinese shells which might fall inside the Settlement.

The memoranda were confined to local problems of the Shanghai situation, avoiding mention of the larger issues involved and were not considered as protests. It was understood that the American ambassador acted on instructions from Washington as a result of consultations by the four governments.

MORE WAR FUNDS.

An extraordinary appropriation of 22,000,000 yen ($7,040,000 at the present rate of exchange) was approved by the Japanese cabinet today to meet additional military expenses in connection with the expedition to Shanghai.

The army received 20,000,000 yen and the navy 2,000,000 yen.

This was the second special appropriation made for the Shanghai expedition. A total of 34,000,000 yen was authorized on Feb. 9, bringing the authorization to date to 50,000,000 yen, or nearly $19,000,000.

HOSTILE TO STIMSON

Opinion in Japan, as expressed thus far, has generally been hostile in tone to Secretary Stimson's letter of a few days ago.

The newspaper Asahi said in an editorial today that "not only is doubting Japan's motive but by co-operating with her will America enable China to stand on her own feet." The editorial criticized Secretary Stimson's reference to the naval treaty and reminded the United States that the Washington conference entailed sacrifices from all the participants and not from America alone.

The newspaper Jiji said the Stimson letter was "harmful" and that there is no question of an economic blockade, which, it added, is a "hare-brained idea" which it considered could not be seriously entertained by the United States authorities. The newspaper expressed anxiety, however, lest President Hoover be led by public opinion and the nearness of a presidential election to daily with the proposal.

U. S. BOYCOTT TALK STIRS UP JAPS

Boston One of Leaders, Tokio Bankers Hear; 5000 More Signers

Tokio, Feb. 26 (INS)—Representatives of Japan's leading banks conferred today with War Minister Gen. Sadao Araki, expressing serious concern over agitation in the United States for an economic boycott against this country.

The bankers informed Araki they considered the petition signed by Newton D. Baker and a number of educators asking Secretary of State Stimson to assure the League of Nations of American support of a boycott as unwarranted and likely to have extremely harmful results.

POINT OUT DANGERS.

They pointed out it may bring "unnecessary complications" and cited it as an indication of an "unfriendly attitude" on the part of the United States.

The foreign office reported today that merchants in Boston and New York were refusing to sell Japanese goods, indicating that the boycott agitation was extending from an academic into the commercial sphere.

A foreign office spokesman said this government considers application of article XVI, which provides for the boycott, difficult as long as the United States and Japan maintain diplomatic relations.

Report 5000 Sign Boycott Petitions

New York, Feb. 26 (INS)—Petitions favoring America's co-operation in a boycott of Japan should the League of Nations initiate such a move were signed by more than 5000 prominent persons in the United States, the American Committee on the Far East crisis reported today.

All the petitions were modeled after that of A. Lawrence Lowell, president of Harvard University, which was signed by Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, and many other civic, industrial and educational leaders, and forwarded to President Hoover last week.

Prof. Edwin W. Kemmerer of Princeton University came out in support of the Lowell petition designed to force peace in China, as did Prof. F. W. Taussig, economist at Harvard.

The economic boycott was favored by Governor Henry H. Horton of Tennessee, while at Princeton University a demand for an economic boycott of Japan was signed by many of the leading professors and members of the Rockefeller Institute at Princeton.

Jap Officials Here Deny Boston Boycott

New York, Feb. 26 (INS)—Attaches of the Japanese consulate general here, today denied reports that New York and Boston merchants were refusing to sell Japanese manufactured goods.

"If such a movement is afoot, it has not been brought to my attention," a spokesman told International News Service.

"The Japanese consul in Boston would certainly communicate with us if merchants in his city were boycotting Japanese commodities. We have received no such communication from him."

SOVIET CHIEF ACCUSES JAPS

Moscow, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Soviet Government demanded last Wednesday of Kodi Hirota, Japanese ambassador, an explanation of a proposal to use the Chinese Eastern Railway, partly Russian owned, for Japanese troop transportation, charging that "in reality the troops were expected to be sent to the Soviet border."

He charged "white" Russian activities were being carried on in Manchuria with protection and direct support of the Japanese.

Karakhan said Japanese authorities in Harbin proposed a contract with the railway to transport regular troops at half the ordinary cost and to carry grain Japanese troops sent to guard the railway.

A dispatch from Peiping said Japanese forces planned to attack Trans-Baikal province eastern terminus of the Chinese Eastern railway, while a "white" Russian group was to invade Vladivostok and Primor province.

Soviet Idol Warns Foes in Far East

Khabarovsk, Siberia, Feb. 26 (INS)—The most powerful military figure in Soviet Russia served sharp warning on imperialists today that Russia will not permit them to "trample on Soviet soil."

He was Gen. Bluecher, cormander-in-chief of the Soviet Far Eastern army and hero of the recent Sino-Russian conflict over the Chinese Eastern Railway.

"The Soviet laboring masses may calmly continue their work," Gen. Bluecher said. "The Far Eastern army will stand firm guard on our borders, vigilantly watching our enemies.

"We will not permit White Guards and imperialists to trample on Soviet soil."

U. S. DOCTORS, NURSES AID CHINESE

American Women at Shanghai Hospitals See Worst of War; the Victims Mostly Children

By MORRIS J. HARRIS.

Shanghai, Feb. 26 (AP)—American women have turned to willingly in this emergency, which has filled Shanghai's hospitals with wounded soldiers, many of them mere boys.

Mrs. O. F. Bryant of San Francisco and Mrs. Roscoe Hambleton of Long Beach, Cal., are on active duty at the Chinese General Red Cross Hospital, where there also are four American physicians, Dr. Athria Mowreath, a Fort Worth, Tex., woman; Dr. J. R. B. Braich of Loudon County, Va.; Dr. Love Ranking, Sweetwater, Tenn., and Dr. R. S. Lyman, Hartford, Ct.

They are putting in long hours without complaint, for the wounded stream into the warda day and night. They see war at its worst, for only the most serious cases are taken to their hospital. The others are treated at field dressing stations.

The victims are appallingly young, some of them not more than 14 or 15—boys who never will see again, children who have lost legs and arms, others frightfully wounded about the face.

Many cases are hopeless but the nurses do what they can to make the last hours as comfortable as possible.

Today 350 were carried in, nearly all of them victims of Japanese bombing raids. Despite their wounds, many of them clung tenaciously to their precious rifles up to the gates of the Settlement, where soldiers of the neutral forces seized the guns.

and gained 100-meters of ground from the surprised Chinese although they failed to surround or capture stubborn Kiangwan.

In the vicinity of the Japanese headquarters where several officers narrowly missed Chinese bullets the bamboo groves were leveled and the ruins of nearby homes were completely razed.

Four Chinese shells dropped near Gen. Uyeda's headquarters last night and staff officers said they expected fresh counter-attacks from Chinese positions tonight, pointing out the Chinese attack only at night in order to avoid Japanese artillery and air bombardment, against which they are defenseless

CLAIMS CONFLICT

The Chinese authorities, claiming today to have regained most of the ground lost in yesterday's battle, said they had recaptured the village of Miaochungchen, but Japanese officials denied this this afternoon.

A fierce battle, in which Japanese and Chinese artillery exchanged shell for shell in a deafening bombardment, raged around embattled Kiangwan today, and both sides claimed shows of victory.

Chinese officials announced during the day that Gen. Chiang aKi-Shek, Chinese army generalissimo and former president, had decided to enter the Shanghai battle himself at the head of large groups of reinforcements, and that he was expected to arrive in the lines tonight or tomorrow.

DOUBT JAP CLAIMS

By desperate fighting, the Chinese succeeded today in recovering much of the ground they lost in yesterday's battle north of Kiangwan, Japanese officials announced at noon, however, that they had finally surrounded Kiangwan village, the stubborn hub of the wheeling movement they have directed vainly against Tachang.

Observers were inclined to take the Japanese claims with some reservations, but the Japanese described their encircling of the village as opening the way to complete the surrounding movement at which they have been aiming for two or three days.

During today's battle here, the Chinese seemed steadied by their success in recovering from yesterday's rout, and early in the day they opened a fierce artillery bombardment on the Japanese strongholds in Hongkew Park. The Japanese guns answered shell for shell. They were doing most of the firing during the forenoon, for Chinese ammunition was running low and gunners were ordered to use it sparingly. During the bombardment machine guns also kept up an unbroken rattle.

LOSSES ARE HEAVY

The infliction of heavy casualties on their opponent was claimed by each side. The Japanese said the Chinese casualties ran into the thousands, while they themselves suffered less than 100 killed or wounded. The Chinese, on the other hand, insisted their own losses were negligible and estimated the Japanese casualties at 700 dead or wounded, which, they said, the Japanese were trying to hide.

The continuous roar of shelling and the unending rain of machine gun bullets indicated, however, that both sides were suffering heavily.

Early in the day the Chinese announced that they had cleared the last Japanese soldier out of the village of Miochungchen, which was occupied late yesterday when the Japanese broke the Chinese first line. The Japanese said, however, that they held the village of Kingchiesza, a mile northwest of Kiangwan.

U. S. Not Seeking to Check 'War' Fliers

Shanghai, Feb. 26 (AP)—United States consular officials today denied reports which have been in circulation here that they were attempting to identify additional American aviators who were reported joining the Chinese air service and to prevent their participation in the Sino-Japanese conflict.

The reports have been in circulation since the death of Robert Short, American flier, in a clash with Japanese planes at Soochow.

JAPAN RUSHING FULL ARMY

Shanghai, Feb. 26 (AP)—Code messages from apan to observers here today said the Japanese soon would have a full army corps here under Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa's that one or two division already were on the way, and that three more divisions were being mobilized.

In view of this information and other developments indicating a decisive battle will be fought next week, both sides were making haste to reinforce their positions tonight.

The Chinese order prohibiting correspondents to visit areas in the rear was taken as an indication that Gen. Tsai is shifting his position, shoving in fresh troops, who must march many miles because the railway lines have been wrecked. The Chinese commander appeared to realize the urgent necessity of having all available troops in the Kiangwan district before the Japanese reinforcements arrived.

Mrs. Hoover Cotton Dress Stirs Tokio

Tokio, Feb. 26 (INS)—Agitation in the United States for an economic boycott against Japan has given rise to numerous sensational stories appearing in vernacular newspapers here and elsewhere in Japan.

One such story featured what was purported to be a denial from the White House at Washington that Japanese Mrs. Hoover had worn cotton clothes at a public reception, thus forming a boycott on Japanese silks.

Coolies Forced to Feed Jap Guns

Shanghai, Feb. 26 (AP)—The men behind the Japanese guns in Shanghai's war of paradoxes are Chinese coolies in addition to their own armed and khaki-clad legions, the Japanese are being assisted in their assaults upon the Chinese Nineteenth Route Army by large groups of Chinese coolies, who, under force, carry the ammunition to the big guns of the Japanese forward position; ammunition which is to be used on the coolies' own brothers and cousins across the lines.

FIFTEEN FLEE REVERE FIRE

Fifteen persons, including nine children, in their night clothing fled to the snow-covered street early today when fire swept the six-family house at 708 Broadway, Revere. Damage is estimated at $3500.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Luictiano carried their three children through smoke from the third floor.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Dioneo left the second floor with their four children, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Robinson were forced from the first floor with two children.

The blaze, according to fire officials, started in the basement store of Mrs. Lena Gerber.

CHINESE HAIL STIMSON 'AID'

Geneva, Feb. 26 (INS)—The Chinese delegation here is highly cheered by Secretary of State Stimson's letter to Senator Borah, believing it will strongly support their demand that the League of Nations declare an economic boycott against Japan.

In advance of the extraordinary session of the League assembly March 3 two schools of thought are developing among diplomats at the disarmament conference.

The first would have the assembly demand hostilities be suspended at once. The second favors immediate declaration of an economic blockade.

Meanwhile the League council is preparing a rejoinder to Japan's answer to its recent appeal to respect Article Ten of the covenant. The rejoinder it is said, will be the strongest communication the council has addressed to either Japan or China.

DIVORCE FOR 'OUR MARY' AND DOUG? OH, THEY'RE USED TO THAT REPORT

Romance Bared

JAMES G. DENTON

MISS HUNTING

James Gerald Dunton, novelist, of Cambridge, and his fiancee, Miss Bertha Louise Hunting of Newton. The couple have obtained a marriage license. Miss Hunting is a former pupil of her intended husband.

New York, Feb. 26 (INS)—Royal families have no divorces. At least—with a few exceptions like Henry the Eighth and Napoleon—that is the theory. And the royal family of Hollywood conforms to tradition.

Mary Pickford is in New York. She is what a film star calls alone, because she has only a secretary and a maid with her, and a few discreet trunks of beautiful clothes. Douglas Fairbanks is on his way to the South seas. He has gone to make a new film, for a man must work.

"I am so used to divorce rumors" said Mary, a little sadly, "that I should miss them if they stopped. After all, we have been married twelve years. What can you expect? We could probably stop the rumors for a while if we made another picture together, or something like that.

A SWEETNESS ABOUT HER.

She looked tired and there was a reluctant sweetness about her that was infinitely touching. She still has the fragile prettiness of the very young, but she has the eyes of a woman too familiar with tears.

One had almost forgotten how tiny she was. Small feet slipping out of little blue shoes, a child's legs in coral satin trousers, an upright little body in her blue and coral Chinese coat, her hair curled like pale shells around her neck; the eyes blue as ever and the small, firm mouth as red. Yet, somehow, the childish face is the face of an unhappy woman.

She talked blithely enough.

"I don't know whether or not to return to the old, unsophisticated type of film," she said. "On the whole, I think I'm too fearful. Old people and children always like my pictures. But the vogue is for sophisticated films.

"I've come to New York partly to look for a new story, and partly to study. I need a rest. I thought I was going to get one, but—" with a rueful smile in the direction of the closed door behind which a telephone was ringing relentlessly and a secretary was dealing with photographers —"so far I've been unlucky."

LONGS FOR SIMPLE LIFE

Somehow the talk got around to five-and-ten-cent stores.

"I worked in one for a day, once," said Mary, as if remembering a lost pleasure. "Just for the experience? No, don't smile, it wasn't for publicity. No one in the store knew who I was. I disguised myself with a set of buckteeth and worked like a slave all day in the toilet section. A woman who came in to buy peroxide told me I looked a little like Mary Pickford, and said she wouldn't be a bit surprised if I could get a job in the movies.

"I wish I could do some ordinary job for a while. Go into a store, or ask a telephone switchboard. Anything"—she sighed—"anything to find out about the lives that aren't sheltered like mine has been.

"In some ways, my life has been too easy. I have an aunty keepers. My family, my nice secretary, my husband . . .

"They protect me from everything." She glanced at her guests, with the air of a woman who is being very careful what she says. It was astonishing how rarely she smiled, and how sad, and sweet her smile was when it came.

"Let me give you some more tea," she said, "and tell you a little about Douglas' new film."

For three years Hollywood and Hollywood's hangers-on have been saying that Mary and Doug were "through." If "through" means giving it all up, getting a divorce, marrying someone else, then Hollywood is wrong. The rest is their own affair.

By THE MASKED REPORTER

Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American.

"Johnny" Sousa's place on Charles st., also contains a real bar but is much more modern in its atmosphere than that of Donahoe.

Like so many speakeasies, it is located in an unpretentious structure, in this case next door to a garage.

The Masked Reporter

There is the usual button over the door on the left hand side, and the customary peephole. Men who guard speakeasy doors must have cameraeyes. Otherwise how could they remember all the faces they see? The answer is they do not.

At any rate, we were admitted without any parley, to a good-sized barroom, down the left side of which ran a real oak bar. There was a sort of decayed, melancholy dignity clinging to Donahoe's place, but this was different.

Sousa, I was informed, is a fairly "Big Shot," and his place was more impressive. It was lighter, more cheerful, with a radio in the back room furnishing a soft obligato to the musical clang of two slot machines which were being given a play. One I learned takes nickels and the other 25-cent pieces, with a $2.50 gold piece in the "jackpot" of the latter.

The room was divided by a partition and we headed for the rear,

READY TO MEET HIS END WHEN REPRIEVED

Mystery Statement Leads to Quick Action by Roosevelt in New York

Ossining, Feb. 26—Ten minutes before he was to enter the Sing Sing execution chamber last night, Benjamin Gordon, 25, convicted of a Bronx murder during a holdup, won a reprieve for a week, the fourth reprieve Gordon has received.

Benjamin Gordon was closer to the electric chair than any other condemned man who received a reprieve. Events leading to the dramatic death house incident were these:

STATEMENT SAVES HIM

At 10 o'clock, Gordon sent for Warden Lawes. He made a statement, whose contents were not divulged, but it is believed Gordon had decided, during his last hour on earth, to give police information regarding the murder of Policeman O'Brien on January 20, 1930.

Warden Lawes telephoned Assistant District Attorney J. P. Adleman of the Bronx, explaining the statement. Adleman then telephoned Governor Roosevelt, asking for the reprieve, to investigate, he said, Gordon's statement.

Meanwhile Gordon had been prepared for the execution. He had hoped for a last minute reprieve, because four other death house prisoners had received reprieves during the day. His head was shaved and he was dressed in the execution suit of black, with the right trouser leg slit for the electrode.

'INNOCENT BUT THANKFUL'

Sam Rosenman, counsel to the governor, telephoned Lawes at 10:40 that a stay had been granted. At 10:50 Gordon was to have entered the death house. Told of the reprieve, he said:

"I was ready to go. I am innocent, but I am thankful."

Gordon's mother, father, brother and two sisters had said goodbye to the condemned youth before 10 o'clock.

GRANDMA VISITS STILLMAN BABY

Members of the Stillman family are looking forward to the day when Mrs. James A. "Bud" Stillman, the former Lena Wilson, and Lena Anne, her four-day-old daughter, can leave New England Baptist Hospital.

Officials at the hospital today reported that both mother and baby were doing "just fine." Preparations were being made by "Bud," his mother, Mrs. Fowler McCormick, and his brother, Guy, to give the couple a royal welcome when they returned to the Stillman home in Brookline.

Mrs. McCormick, who arrived from Chicago yesterday, had her first glimpse of her baby granddaughter yesterday afternoon. She pointed out that the role of grandmother was nothing new as she had three grandsons already, the children of her daughter, Anne.

Fire Alarm 12 Hours Late a Mysteree

Taunton developed a three-alarm comedy of errors yesterday and news of it reached Boston today in the following dispatch which the reader is invited to tackle, catch-as-catch-can:

Taunton, Feb. 26—Firemen called yesterday to a grass fire on Round st. found that the alarm was 12 hours late, as the house had been burned to the ground, but no call had been received for the house fire.

The house, owned by Dominic Cyr of this city, had been occupied until about a week ago. Richard Hobson, who discovered the fire, said he sent a man to call the fire department, but evidently the alarm fell flat somewhere.

The department extinguished the grass fire and fires in two small outbuildings yesterday, also a grass fire which had started under Engine, but which did not cause any damage to the apparatus.

And now an investigation has been started.

FEW BANKS ARE FAILING NOW

Washington, Feb. 26 (INS)—Bank failures have dropped sharply in the last two weeks. During the last eight days not a single national system having suspended operations, according to reports at the office of comptroller of the currency.

This is regarded as the most significant development in financial circles since the beginning of operations of the reconstruction finance corporation, desgned to restore confidence through making loans to banks.

Over $25,000,000 in loans have already been paid out of the treasury, following authorizations by the corporation, and many of them went to banks.

SACCO CASE LED TO DIVORCE

Judge Joseph R. McCoole granted an uncontested divorce to Mrs. Anna Pizzio of Cotting st., West End, after she had testified Gregory Pizzio left her two months after their marriage in 1927.

Pizzio is a Communist, she said, and din't believe Sacco and Vanzetti should have been electrocuted. She did. The trouble thus started ended when he threatened to leave her if she didn't stop going to church, and did.

Part-Time Work on City Jobs Stopped

Civil service commission seniority rules have caused the Newton street department to abandon its policy of part-time work for city laborers, it was announced today.

Fifty men who have been working three days a week were restored to full time when it was ruled that the men already employed must be given full time work before any additional men may be employed. The appropriation of funds for the construction of a drain at Auburndale Park enabled the city to put the men back to work six days a week.

HUSBAND SAVES WIFE AND BABY

Aroused by the cries of his baby son to find his home in flames, Thurlow S. Widger of 140 Webb st., Weymouth, assisted his wife and child to safety as a two-alarm fire swept their home, causing $20,000 damage.

Widger, who is president of the Widger & Miller company, with offices in Milk st., was awakened shortly after 2 a. m. by the cries of his son. He arose and went to his room to find it filled with smoke. He aroused his wife and snatched up the child and several valuables in his arms.

Attempting to leave the house by a rear stairway to the back door he found his way cut off by flames. Going to the front of the house he found a mass of flames here also.

Deciding to take a chance, he guided his wife down the stairs and through the flames. Garbed only in nightclothing they made their way outside into a blinding snowstorm.

Neighbors cared for them as firemen fought the blaze. The fire apparatus arrived just as the family escaped from the house.

$100,000 FIRE LOSS AT WARE

Ware, Feb. 26 (AP)—Fire today destroyed the junior high school building at a loss approximating $100,000. The blaze started in the boiler room.

The fire was discovered by a nearby resident who was awakened by the smoke. The flames were beyond control before the arrival of fire apparatus.

William Barry, superintendent of schools, said all school records were saved.

Move to Name Square for Waltham Hero

ALIBI OFFERED FOR NEGRESS

Augusta, Me., Feb. 26 (AP)—Testimony that Mrs. Eleanor Johnson was watching a motion picture mystery called "The Spider" in a Waterville theater the night she is accused of murdering her 20-year-old employer, Abraham Levine, was introduced by the defense at the trial of the 38-year-old negress today.

Mrs. Bertha Grant of Clinton said Mrs. Johnson sat beside her in the theater the night of September 26, the night young Levine was discovered huddled over a desk in his house, with four bullets in his back.

Defense counsel read to the jury the sworn testimony of the cashier of the theater, Mrs. Mary Lacombe, who said she recalled selling a ticket to Mrs. Johnson the night Levine was killed.

Independents Quit Watertown Election

Dentist Isn't Scared by Apple; You Need an Orchard!

St. Paul, Feb. 26 (AP)—Maybe a doctor will stay away if one eats an apple a day, but as for dentists—

Well, it takes at least two apples, a pint of orange juice, and a couple of bananas to keep them away, Dr. Milton Theodore Hanke of the University of Chicago, told the Minnesota State Dental Health Association convention.

In addition, Dr. Hanke said in submitting a diet designed to keep teeth in good condition, one should eat one of two eggs; one-quarter to one-half head of lettuce; not less than two vegetables; any kind of meat, and drink one to four glasses of milk daily.

Sister Gets Share of Davis Estate

Salem, Feb. 26—By settling out of court her contest of the $6,000,000 will of her sister, Mrs. Adelaide Pierce Davis of Lynnfield, Mrs. Ruth L. Frechette of Swampscott has obtained a portion of the estate which makes her an independently wealthy woman, it was revealed here when the testament was allowed for probate in Judge Alden P. White's court.

Attorney James W. Sullivan of Lynn, appearing for Mrs. Frechette, intimated that if the stock market rises, his client will be possessed of virtually $500,000.

Huge War Painting on Way to Capitol on Truck

New York, Feb. 26 (INS)—A box weighing 12½ tons, supported at either end by a motor truck, was to start to Washington today.

The canvas is 45 feet tall and 402 feet long. When hung for exhibition purposes as a cyclorama it makes a circle 140 feet in diameter. Twenty-eight artists and several hundred assistants completed the painting in four years.

MONEY RELIEF BILL IS GIVEN RIGHT OF WAY

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 26 (INS)—The Glass-Steagall bill, hailed as certain to start the nation on a return to prosperity, was given the right of way in both House and Senate today.

The bill would strengthen the gold standard, liquidate frozen assets in National banks, loosen credit facilities of the Federal Reserve system and permit an expansion of the currency.

The last steps in enacting it will be taken when House and Senate approve a conference report. The bill then will await the President's signature.

CONFEREES AGREE.

The Senate was to suspend debate on the Norris anti-injunction bill, for disposition of the banking relief measure, which, as finally approved in conference, contains these relief provisions:

Loans by Federal Reserve banks to groups of national banks on any collateral approved by the Federal Reserve Board, when the borrowing banks have exhausted all security now eligible for rediscount.

Loans, under like conditions, by Federal Reserve banks for a period of one year to individual national banks having a capital of $5,000,000 or less. All but 62 national banks could get relief under this section.

MORE FREE GOLD.

Authority for Federal Reserve Banks to secure issues of currency from the Federal Reserve Board for one year on direct obligations of the United States. This section would release about $800,000,000 of free gold if desired, or provide for issuance of $1,500,000,000 in new currency, while maintaining the usual 40 per cent gold basis for all currency as required by the gold standard.

Advocates of the bill predict it will prevent bank runs and failures and release huge sums for credit.

Senator Fletcher (D.) of Florida, meantime, has sponsored a bill setting aside 5 per cent of the capital stock of all Federal Reserve Banks as a guaranty fund to protect depositors of member banks.

WET LEAD CUT IN U. S. POLL ON DRY LAW

The vote for continuance of the Eighteenth Amendment registers a gain of from 15.85 per cent to 19.28 per cent of the total vote in the second week's returns of the Literary Digest 20 million ballot nation-wide poll, as announced in tomorrow's issue of the magazine.

An additional tabulation of over 450,000 votes is reported, making a total of 775,332 for the current tally. Of this tabulation, 149,526 votes, or 19.28 per cent, favor continuance of the prohibition amendment and 625,806, or 80.72 per cent favor repeal.

Nine states, the initial returns of which are tabulated in this second published report of the poll include: Connecticut, Maine, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont and West Virginia.

NEW YORK WETTEST

All of the states so far reported show a majority sentiment in favor of repeal.

The wettest state in the current returns is New York from which 87.02 per cent of the ballots counted are for repeal, which is a slight decrease in its wet sentiment over the prior returns.

Second and third in wetness are New Jersey and Connecticut, where the vote to date shows 85.57 and 80.89 per cent, respectively, for repeal.

Maine, which has long been slated as a dry state, shows a sentiment of 67.72 per cent for repeal.

Rhode Island and Connecticut, the only states which have never ratified the prohibition amendment are both voting over five to one for repeal.

SOUTH WET

	Favor Prohibition	Favor Repeal	Total
Connecticut	1,528	8,579	10,107

WET BLOC NEAR ITS VOTE GOAL IN HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—The wet bloc of the House of Representatives was within grasping distance of success today in the effort to secure a rollcall on a state-control prohibition amendment to the Constitution.

A hundred and eight names have already been signed to the petition, filed yesterday, which seeks to have the House recall from the unfriendly judiciary committee a resolution which would submit the new amendment to the people. The total number of signatures needed is 145.

If the 145 sign, the petition will be acted upon after March 14. Of the signers so far 57 are Democrats and 51 Republicans. They come from 23 states, New York being far in the lead with 28 signers. Ten of the Pennsylvania delegation were down on the dotted line, and nine from Illinois.

Ohio, Massachusetts, Michigan and Wisconsin furnished seven each, and New Jersey six. Connecticut was represented by four, and California, Maryland and Minnesota three each.

Louisiana, Missouri and Rhode Island showed two signers each, while the following were represented by a single petitioner: Iowa, Indiana, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and West Virginia.

The Life Story of JOHN N. GARNER

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

His First Campaign for Congress a Struggle Against Opponent Who Favored Trusts

CHAPTER V

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc. All Rights Reserved.)

JOHN N. GARNER'S first campaign for Congress, on which, if the American people had but known, hung the American speakership, the future leadership of the Democratic party, and mayhap the Presidency of the United States, was a terrific battle.

He has emerged victorious from many hard-fought contests since then, in Texas, and in Washington, but none was like the initial struggle, a life and death grapple for political existence.

A few years had slipped by since the bride and groom had settled down, after the honeymoon, in their own modest home in Uvalde. Vines grew about the small cottage. Flowers, under Mrs. Garner's ministering care, filled the garden with color and fragrance. The baby was five, and John N. Garner was 32 years old. His health had come back, under the invigorating altitude of Uvalde County, and he was in gladiator trim. He needed to be.

A good many Republicans from the North had moved into the Fifteenth Texas district, even as early as 1902. There was a strong Republican vote. The people had gone in for the raising of citrus fruits and garden produce, and mohair goats, and there was much complaint of tariff discrimination against these industries.

Garner, from the outset, had to combat the widespread opinion that Judge Dibrell was the only Democrat who could surely be counted upon to defeat the Republican nominee.

A STRONG CAMPAIGN

He covered the district from end to end, and when it is realized that it is some 400 miles long by approximately 200 miles wide, the magnitude of the task may be appreciated. His district was an empire in itself, containing, among other things, the celebrated King ranch, which is itself larger than the entire state of Rhode Island.

There were no hard surface highways in those days in Texas. The "good roads" movement had not begun. The automobile was the novelty of the rich in a few northern cities.

Young John N. Garner reached his constituency when he could by the railroad line that ran through the district, and when the railroad failed him, he got to them by stage, by horse and buggy, and on horseback, across the sun-baked plains, all up the valley of the Rio Grande from Brownsville to Eagle Pass, covering 22 huge counties in all, each county as large as some of our smaller states.

Gentlemen "running" for Congress in urban districts, or even in the more densely populated rural states, have no conception of the hardships entailed in a political campaign under such conditions as confronted John N. Garner during his early political career, before the advent of the automobile and good roads. Now the district can be covered over some of the finest roads in the world.

IN JOINT DEBATES

Where Garner went, frequently Dibrell went also. They staged a great number of old-fashioned joint debates with probably a thousand or more people gathered in the small towns to hear them. Benches would be set up in the streets, and all business would be suspended while the battle went on. As one of the local newspapers expressed it, in the heat of the campaign, "there is blood and hair and the ground is strewn."

The platform adopted by the Laredo convention, August 27, 1902 the first Congressional convention held in political platform on which John N. Garner ever stood—proposed a remedy for the trust evil. It declared for a tariff for revenue only with incidental protection, and for the livestock industry a protection equal to that given to articles manufactured from livestock. It took a stand against imperialism, and declared for the irrigation of the Rio Grande valley. It denounced "both the doctrine of free raw material and Republican reciprocity."

Garner took the platform at the convention, and made his first speech in what might be called the national field. He reached 'way outside the 15th Texas district, and attacked President Theodore Roosevelt on the ground of insincerity in dealing with the trusts. He favored, he said, a law putting trust-made articles on the free list. He favored protection for raw materials equal to that of the manufactured article. He attacked the Republican policy in the Philippines.

It was not local—it was a national address, on a national theme. His vision, from the Rio Grande, embraced the entire Republic.

HIS FIRST PLATFORM

It is significant that the first Garner platform endorsed the Panama Canal project, and favored "the most friendly and just relations with our sister Republic of Mexico."

Garner was the hero of the hour. So hot was the fight that in the midst of the primaries Judge Dubrell suddenly announced his withdrawal as a candidate. When the convention assembled, Garner was the sole hero. He was placed in nomination by Judge Stanley Welch and the nomination was seconded by Judges Ellis of Uvalde. Garner was then nominated by acclamation.

Said the Clarkville Times, with pardonable pride:

"Score one more for old Red River County—another of her sons landed with both feet. John Garner, now of Uvalde, has won the Democratic nomination for Congress in his district and the nomination is equivalent to election. We all knew John was going to do his home county credit, but he has got there even faster than we expected. He is the kind of man that will make himself known in Washington and leave his impress on the records. He will not only hold his own in the halls of Congress but will come mighty near holding high, low, jack and the game on the outside."

The Honey Grove Signal, bursting into a paen of praise for the Democratic nominee said: "Mr. Garner is known affectionately in his part of the country as 'Chaparal Cock of the Frio,' and sometimes 'Chapparal Cock' is changed to 'Road Runner,' that being the local name of the bird. Mr. Garner is still supposed to have splinters in his feet that he got in Red River County."

TAKES ALL IN FUN

Another Texas paper declared that Mr. Garner had won because he had shrewdly borrowed a picture of Jeff McLemore, had it printed in all the papers in his district as his own, and then laid low until after the primaries had decided the matter."

There was a good deal of fun poked at John N. Garner in these days because of his looks. During the campaign Garner showed up in Corpus Christi one day, when he had been on the road a week without opportunity to shave.

He was talking to his old friend, Judge James B. Wells, when Pat Dunn, a big cattleman joined them. Wells introduced them, and when Garner had left Dunn said:

"Who was that man?"

"Why," replied Wells, "that's Jack Garner, the candidate for Congress."

"Well," said Dunn, "he's the worst looking specimen of humanity I ever saw."

From all accounts, the Garner of thirty years ago gave little promise of the distinguished, gray-haired statesman into which he has since developed. Contemporary accounts of his first Congressional campaign in 1902 sparkle with broad references to his cowboy appearance, couched in humorous exaggeration of the day.

A HANDSOME VICTORY

But there was nothing to make folks laugh about the way John N. Garner made that initial fight for Congress. When the Democratic namination was his, he turned his attention to his Republican opponent.

This was John C. Scott, of Corpus Christi, member of a prominent and wealthy Democratic family.

E. H. R. Green, millionairess Hetty's well-known son, and Republican State Chairman of Texas, financed the Republican campaign. There was a memorable joint debate between the two candidates at Floresville, on September 6, from which Garner emerged the recognized winner.

Garner defeated Scott by a handsome majority. The Congressional district he had himself carved out by his own effort, was his at last—to have, and to hold!

'SHADOW'S' TIP WAS RED HOT

Police of Dudley st. station today are seeking the identity and address of "The Shadow" after he called the station with a red-hot tip.

"Go to 69 Hammond st., in Roxbury," he directed the police. "You'll find a package stolen off an express truck today."

"Who are you?" he was asked.

"Shh! I'm the Shadow," was the reply. "Keep in touch with me and you'll solve all your crime."

Then he hung up.

The police went to the address as directed and found a package containing 50 pounds of nuts and candy which had been stolen yesterday afternoon from an express truck.

POLICE CALLED IN LYNN STRIKE

Extra police were called to the Lynn shoe district today when 400 workers picketed four shops in a walkout that may mean a general shoe strike in that city.

The 400 walked outyesterday in protest against "yellow dog" contracts in which employers force workers to refrain from joining unions.

They also ask a blanket pay increase of 15 per cent.

William Lucier, general agent of the Boot and Shoe Workers Union conferred with other union officials today at Lasters' Hall, Andrews st., Lynn.

where a pleasant-faced bartender, wearing his hat perhaps in case of fire, was attending to the needs of several customers.

CANADIAN ALE, TOO

I was informed that this was one of the few bars which handled real Canadian ale, most of the trade in that commodity being confined to the better class of clubs. It sold for $1.25 a bottle, as I found on ordering, and tasted like real ale. I gathered there was a big call for it. My companion had a drink of "real stuff," which the bartender had to leave the room to get, at 50 cents.

Booze, I was told, is also a distributor, or wholesaler, supplying a number of "speaks" in his district.

A grade of what was called rye was procurable at the bar for 35 cents a drink, while gin was rated at 25 cents.

There was nothing behind the bar, all the glasses being kept underneath, together with liquor bottles.

Business was fairly good, with customers arriving and departing frequently, but the bartender was not required to exert himself. At night, however, and particularly Saturday night, it was another thing again. The proprietor, former manager of Al Mello, the boxer, is well known in the sporting world and has a big following.

SATURDAY BIG DAY

At night two bartenders are needed to care for the trade, and on Saturdays three are required to cope with the rush.

While not engaged in watching the door, the guard spent his time in the back room, keeping an alert eye on the customers, and apparently ready to nip any disturbance in the bud. As a matter of fact, everything was quiet and orderly, as well conducted as any prohibition saloon.

The bartender, while not voluble, was affable, and was capable of carrying on an intelligent conversation. He appeared to be fairly well educated, and although quiet, was pleasant.

The doorguard also, was of a type somewhat superior to what might have been expected.

Customers seemed unable to pass the slot machines without giving them a play. The machines were of the fruit symbol type previously described, both with "jackpots," visible to the players through small windows. The 25-cent machine appeared to be the more popular, because of the gold piece which could be seen nestling in among the nickels in the "jackpot."

As I have explained, the jackpots are formed by occasional coins being diverted to a compartment in the front of the machine, where they remain until a lucky player "hits" them. All the time I was in Lowell I never saw a jackpot pay off, but possibly they do.

Coin after coin was dropped into the machines, and every now and then as the symbols fell into line, they paid off, but always in small amounts. Two coins, four coins, sometimes eight coins dropped into the receptacles from time to time, but even then the percentage against the player was heavy. When the machines are "gimmicked," as I am told they are on every Saturday, the player hasn't a chance.

The bar was beginning to fill up and I decided to go and eat before continuing my investigation.

My companion and I left and outside I bade him good-by, thanking him for his kindness. He assured me earnestly that I was under no obligations to him and went on his way, apparently at peace with the world.

Another article on liquor, lotteries and slot machines in Lowell, as revealed by the Masked Reporter, will be published by the Boston Evening American tomorrow.

CONVICTS HAD KEYS TO JAIL

Honolulu, Feb. 26 (AP)—A story of convicts carrying the keys to their cells and the outer gates of the penitentiary, and of prisoners leaving for night or week-end visits, is told in a report of the Hawaiian prison directors to Gov. Lawrence M. Judd.

The report covered the state of affairs during the height of Honolulu's recent crime wave, when the Oahu prison was under the administration of Sheriff John C. Lane. Lane resigned in January under censure by the governor.

Misappropriation of supplies and moral laxity of prisoners, as evidenced by birth of a child to a woman prisoner, were included in the sweeping charges of gross mismanagement and lax control. Liquor was frequently taken into the penitentiary, the report said.

On December 31 two prisoners were gone several hours before the administration knew it. One assaulted the wife of a prominent Honolulu business man the next day, was recaptured and sentenced to life imprisonment. His companion, a murderer, was at large 20 days.

Victim Dying After Leg Is Hammered Off in Crash

New York, Feb. 26 (INS)—An apparently vain effort was made to save the life of George Wanamaker, 32, Jamaica, by hammering off one of his legs when he was caught between two blazing cars that had collided, for physicians at Flushing Hospital said today he would probably die of his injuries.

Wanamaker was pinned beneath the automobile to which he was riding with his brother-in-law, Louis Rosenthal, Floral Park, when another machine crashed into it. Both cars burst into flame.

Iceman Accused in Woman's $2000 Suit

Charging that the iceman negligently and carelessly permitted his ice tongs to fall on her, Mrs. Carrie Levingston of Malden has filed suit for damages of $2000 in Middlesex Superior Court against Kelly & West, Inc., of Malden.

Mrs. Levingston claims that she sustained severe personal injuries but held him fast beneath the wreckage.

At the hospital it was found necessary to amputate Wanamaker's other leg, and he was declared to have received a fracture of the skull and a broken arm.

Missing Schoolboy Found Near Home

An hour after a worried father asked police of the East Boston station to help find his 7-year-old son, who failed to return home after school yesterday, the boy was located in a bakery across the street from his home early today.

The father, Charles Donahue, of 27 Havre st., East Boston, appeared at the station shortly after midnight. Police found John Donahue, 7, in the bakery. Employes said he had entered the place and asked to be allowed to stay until his parents called for him.

Poison Fly Paper Linked to Killing

Chicago, Feb. 26 (US)—Fly paper containing arsenic occupied the attention of the jury today in the trial of Mrs. Margaret Summers, a widow, charged with poisoning and killing her 17-year-old nephew, Thomas Meyer.

Two witnesses testified that Mrs. Summers had sent to a store for fly paper "the kind you put in a plate of water." The boy died from arsenical poisoning.

DID YOU KNOW . . . ? THAT TOM POWERS, WHO IS appearing at the Copley this week and next in an American comedy of his own authorship, is not only an actor of established reputation but is an accomplished aviator, painter, sculptor, poet and composer?

• • •

That he is putting on Handy Man, which is a real true-to-life American drama with a laugh in it, a tear in it and a punch in it?

• • •

That everyone should take his mother to see it, and his wife and his sweetheart, because the simple philosophy of Handy is good for us all?

• • •

That Mr. Powers invited all young people who have been married 50 years or over to come to see the production and be sure to go back stage to shake hands with him after the performance?

• • •

That WE went back to meet him last evening and discovered to our amusement that he is the only actor we have ever met whom we had the impulse to kiss on meeting?

• • •

Mrs. James J. Jackson Attends

THAT HIS PHILOSOPHY OFF STAGE IS JUST AS interesting as on it; he believes if some long, lean, lanky American should come along just now with a little old horse sense, such entanglements as debt reparations, prohibition and depression could be unravelled in short order? Come on thar, you Abe Lincoln!

• • •

That another real American was in the front row last evening, Mrs. James J. Jackson, and she applauded until the fall of the last curtain?

• • •

That a certain little dark-haired Junior Leaguer in the cast is a very interesting little person and the Vincent Ventures is losing real talent because of her professional engagement?

• • •

Forbes Girls Back

THAT VICTORIA POTTER, Isabel's sister, and Angela Forbes, of England, who have been visiting Lady Carter in Barbados, have returned to town this week? Angela is the daughter of the Jimmie Forbeses and has 11 brothers and sisters. F. Murray Forbes is her uncle, which makes Dorothy, a bud of this year, her cousin. These two lucky girls have been in the tropics since Thanksgiving and have been lavishly entertained during their stay in Barbados.

Books—And a Number of Things

By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

There are many stories going about concerning the late Mrs. Fiske, who was undoubtedly our most famous and best-loved actress. Two or three I know at first hand, and I wish you would all gather around me to listen to them. They throw, I think, new light on her vivid personality.

In the first place, she was the best listener on our stage. Often one goes to the theater and sees some actor who has not been properly trained, gazing at the wall back of him, in the midst of a most romantic scene. I have even seen his eyes move toward the upper box when they should have been looking into the eyes of the lady wrapped in his arms. Mrs. Fiske never tolerated such tactics in her company.

In "Ladies of the Jury" we all noted how she listened, with fixed attention to each witness put upon the stand in the courtroom scene. And there was a moment in the play when her eyes followed the French maid when her testimony was finished, and she went back to sit among the spectators. That glance revealed to the audience how she discounted every bit of the girl's story.

Meeting her at a reception sometime afterward I told her how this bit of "business" fascinated me. Modestly, like all great artists, she said: "Did I really do that? I didn't know it."

She couldn't help it, you see. She did what was natural to do—the instinctive right thing at the right moment. And then she told me that she hoped to retire within a few years and do nothing but direct.

Her loss to our theater in that capacity is incalculable. She was never afraid to surround herself with the most brilliant actors, knowing full well that minor characters were as important as stars.

She couldn't help it, you see. She Way theaters in small cities when she was on tour, hoping to find some new talent for her own company. Once, in such a quest, she witnessed a stock actress who was trying to give an emotional performance. When the curtain fell, a friend asked her what she thought of this interpretation of the part.

"Ah!" said Mrs. Fiske, her eyes shining, "it was a firm, firm touch on the wrong note!" Which is the best description of bad acting I have ever heard.

I remember her opening performance at the old Manhattan Theater of "Hedda Gabler." Carlotta Nillson was playing Mrs. Elvsted and playing it magnificently. She was then practically unknown, and in the great scene with Tesman played by William B. Mack and with Mrs. Fiske, of course, as Hedda, Miss Nillson was moving us all with her terror at the barrage of questions fired at her by the scintillating star.

Again and again when the curtain went down, Mrs. Fiske brought her out to take bows with her, and finally gave her a call alone. It was a splendid, generous gesture; and when Mrs. Fiske came out again with Miss Nillson the latter bent down and kissed her hand. Then the house rose to them both.

• • •

And how Mrs. Fiske did keep pace with the times!

One bright afternoon in spring a few years ago I was walking in Fifth ave., when I saw the great actress coming toward me. She said, with one of those impulsive little gestures of hers:

"Come, step into this doorway with me, my dear Mr. Electrician. I wish to ask you something." Then: "Now, listen to me attentively. I am thinking of reviving 'Becky Sharp,' season after next. Be truthful. Do you think I am too old for that part now?"

I told her that she certainly was not; that she never looked more youthful and charming; that the public would form a queue from the Battery to Harlem at the news of this revival. "Why," I added, with what I thought a bit of inspiration, you could even revive 'Tess of the D'Urbevilles' if you wanted to do so."

Whereupon Mrs. Fiske gave me a sly glance, and then cried with gusto: "How strange that you should have spoken of that old play of mine! Only last night I took it out of my desk and re-read it. And now, be truthful again, Mr. Electrician!" Her face lighted up. "Do you think that people today would be interested in the story of a girl who was ruined only once?" And I can still hear her light laughter, as it rippled down the street.

Only a year ago I happened to say to Mrs. Fiske: "What wonderful health you must have! Do you know, I never remember hearing of your missing a performance in your whole career."

She smiled, and said: "Yes, once I did. It was in Chicago. I went down the lift, feeling rather seedy, I admit, to play a matinee. When I reached the ground floor, Mr. Fiske happened to meet me. He gave me one look, and then said, 'Go right back, and go to bed. You are too ill to play.' I did as I was told. The matinee was called off, much to my chagrin. But," she added, triumphantly, "I got up, pulled myself together, ragged though I felt, and got through the evening performance! But I've never ceased to regret missing that matinee. I could have done it—oh, yes, I could have done it. And it broke my record!"

Club Presents Show Next Month

Tickets for the forthcoming "Vincent Ventures" to be given at the Majestic Theater, March 10, 11, and 12, will be on sale Monday at Herrick's and the downtown Thayer McNeil store. This year there are to be a large number of 50 cent and $1 tickets. The novelty for the program has not been announced as yet. A few of the Vincent Club costumes may be seen in the show windows of R. H. Stearns.

In First Act

Some of the choruses and features of the first act and those taking part are the "Red Fringe Girls," Dorothy Forbes, Alice Ellsworth, Mrs. Baldwin Webster, Jane Wheeler, Joan Lindsley, Mary Cushman and Lila Draper. In the "Story of th. Tapestery," Isabella Grandin, the reader, the children, Sidney Sherburne and Betty Spalding, the bride is Mrs. L. B. Carlton Colt and the bride's mother is Mrs. Hencken. The ladies are Mrs. Osgood, Elizabeth Scaife, Betty McGinley, Mrs. Pliny Jewell, Anne Tuckerman and Dorothea Newman. Pages for his number are Marian Clark and Beatrice de Menocal.

The four Palfrey sisters, Polly, Elizabeth, Mianne and Sarah, have a song and dance number by themselves.

A chorus, which has recently been selected, is entitled "Dream Couples." The girls chosen for this are, Priscilla Bramhall, Mrs. Pliny Jewell, Mrs. George Hill, Dorothea Newman, Elizabeth Hamlin, and those taking the male roles are: Mary Emery, Harriet White, Elsie Perkins, Anne Peabody and Mrs. Paul Brooks.

Musical Comedy

"Uproar Grand" promises to be a very entertaining number. Mrs. Morgan Butler will take the part of Trillando. Mrs. Decker of Bombbastini, and Mrs. John E. Thayer, Jr., will be in the role of "Highsnah."

In the second act, which is a musical comedy entitled "Lady Lightfingers," Harlan will be played by Mrs. Thayer. Joe will be Jane Bancroft, Cleo, Mrs. Campbell Patterson; Kenneth, Nancy Whitman; Sadie, Sally White; Margie, Mrs. Decker; Stubble, Mrs. Brooks. Mrs. Butler will be cast as the buyer. Elizabeth Scaife as the waiter, and the two shop girls will be Alice Ellsworth and Dorothy Forbes.

Hostesses for Museum Tea

Mrs. Romney Spring and Miss Edith Cochran will serve as hostesses at a tea to be held on Wednesday afternoon at the Museum of Fine Arts, inaugurating the opening of the exhibition of the Boston Landscape Architects.

Governor and Mrs. Joseph B. Ely, Mayor James M. Curley and Miss Mary Curley, Mr. and Mrs. Gaspar Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller and others will be among the society's guests.

Assisting Mrs. Spring and Miss Cochrane will be Mrs. John Nolen, Mrs. Guy H. Lee, Mrs. Leon Zach, Mrs. Hallam L. Mervin, Mrs. Edwin Michell Prellwitz and Mrs. William Marquis.

Exhibits, paintings and models of privats estates, show places, and plans throughout the country will be on display in two of the museum galleries. The exhibition is directed by Guy H. Lee, Frederick Kingsbury and William R. Sears.

BOOKS AND CHARACTERS

By LINCOLN KIRSTEIN

AUTHORS AND PUBLISHERS AMONG THE OTHER industries that have suffered from the general maladies attendant on the general economic depression, the book publishing business has been no exception. Far too many books are being published, and the advertising given books by the publishers, the high-pressure sales talks, the authors teas, the padding of book note columns in the daily press, have created an exaggerated and imaginery interest in books which does not really exist. Whether it is due to the publishers or to the buyers of books, there is no doubt as to the overwhelming interest the American public has in the personalities of authors. It is true that publishers have consistently attempted to popularize the more intimate aspects of their writers' lives in an effort to make the possible reader take a more personal interest in a man's work. But the idea has spread now to such extraordinary proportions that very often we are led to be more interested in what an author wears and eats than in what he writes.

Publishers have forms which every one of their authors receives. The author fills it out and sends it back to his publicity department. Shortly, by word of the daily press the whole world can know that Mr. Jonathan Gravy, well-known author of "This Mad Madness," to be published tomorrow morning by Pencil & Sons, has a weakness for grey tweed suits, cold roast beef and Sealyham terriers; that his hobbies are billiards and backgammon; that he has a large collection of button-holes and that he has two children called Hans and Fritz. There is, in fact, no mention of "This Mad Madness," whether it is a novel or a book on psychology or a biography of the original of Lewis Carroll's "Mad Madness." If the truth were told there is not much to be said for "This Mad Madness." The publishers were wise in restricting their publicity to what kind of clothes Mr. Jonathan Gravy wore. Why the book was published at all is a mystery—but as long as it is printed it must be sold, and the only way to sell it is to popularize Mr. Gravy.

Seriously speaking, it is a vicious circle. The publishers make the public more interested in the people who write the books than the print on the page. The people who buy the books are usually sorry they bought the book on the strength of what the author ate for breakfast. Part of the very serious condition now existent in the publishing business is directly due to methods of forced salesmanship such as has been briefly suggested. More books are published than ought to be. This is justified by the inflated interest which the public seems to have in an author who has been artificially trumped up by publicity. Then when the book goes dead on account of its lack of intrinsic worth, the publisher is out the cash he put up for it—the booksellers are forced to return the book to the publishers with their net worth largely depreciated, and the only thing left is to remainder the book for its sale at cut-rate newsstands—and, more important, the public is disappointed. This final death blow ruins the prestige of the author, and, indirectly, the publisher.

If there is any good at all that comes out of the present depression as it affects the book industry, it may be in the direction of a sounder basis of editorial selection. Formerly anyone, practically speaking, could get a book printed. Now it is becoming increasingly more difficult. Publishers are more careful that the risks they take are as sound business propositions as possible. They still can pay more attention to the actual literature that they are helping to create than to the private lives of the authors. If the public has been educated to demand gossip, it is the fault, and a serious economic fault, on the part of the publishers. If they but knew it, we are actually more eager for the information as to the quality of what we buy to read than in any other facts of the transaction. It is devoutly to be hoped that the present will mark the start of a new era in publishing, an era of a wiser and more widely educated public and a more selective editorial policy on the part of the large publishing houses. Only in that way can the industry raise itself out of its present purgatory.

Legion Drive Finds Jobs for 89,812 Men

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—The national drive to secure jobs for 1,000,000 unemployed continued today with almost 10 per cent. of the goal realized in little less than two weeks.

Sponsored by the American Legion, the "war on depression" was launched February 15. Since then work has been found for 89,812 persons. Wisconsin leads the states with 11,642. Yesterday's campaign now netted 8018 positions.

FIEND SLASHES GIRL TO DEATH WITH KNIFE

Newark, N. J., Feb. 26 (INS)—Torture and fiendish murder were revealed today when the knife slashed body of an unidentifie girl was found in an open doorway. Her throat was cut and more than 20 knife wounds marked her body.

A woman leaving for work stumbled across the victim in the half light of a murky dawn.

Her screams brought the police but none who lived in the house knew the victim.

There was no distinguishing feature about the girl's clothing to give detectives a clue. She was a Latin type. A ring bearing a religious insignia was on her right hand and on her left was a wedding ring.

No weapon was found, and a small amount of blood prompted police to declare that she had been slain elsewhere and then borne into the doorway.

Missing Students' Search Worldwide

More than 2000 circulars describing Floyd J. Stewart and Nathaniel E. Jolas, missing Harvard business school students, were sent to all parts of the United States and Canada, and to capitals in South America and Europe, today, Supt. Ainsley C. Armstrong of the Boston police.

The students have been missing since January 31.

A PRIZE FOR CROSSWORDS

Miss Florence Mitton, of Arlington, admiring the Legionnaire Radio from the Davis Hardware Store, 124 Summer st., first prize award in Series D of the Washington Patriotic Prize Puzzles.

RADIO PRIZE TO WINNER

A distinctive table model Legionnaires radio will be awarded to the winner of this week's series of Washington Patriotic Prize Puzzles. This radio, in an attractive walnut finish cabinet, with genuine R. C. A. tubes, is among the many sets on display at the Davis Hardware store, one of the largest and most progressive hardware and paint stores in New England, occupying the entire building at 124 Summer st., Boston.

Someone who is skilful in solving Series D puzzles will have an opportunity to see the smash musical hit, "Everybody's Welcome," at the Majestic Theater, starring Frances Williams, Oscar Shaw, Ann Pennington and Harriet Lake. More than that, they will have the opportunity to share their good fortune with others, because one of the prizes will be four guest tickets to this attraction.

Another worth while award will be an all-expenses-paid evening at the smart night club, Seaglades, in Hotel Westminster. The prize winner and the one who shares will have a delicious dinner, dancing and entertainment by Mickie Alpert, Cliff O'Rouke and the other night club stars now playing at this popular rendevous.

Inasmuch as the current series of puzzles numbers only five, there is still opportunity to get busy and compete for the awards.

White House Drink Bill $4500 a Year—It's for Milk

Merrill O. Maughan, executive secretary of the Milk Council, Inc., said that 24 quarts of milk and 12 pints of whipped cream are delivered each day at the White House, making President Hoover one of the nation's best customers for the milkman.

HALF OF BRIDGE STARS OUT OF N. Y. FINALS

New York, Feb. 26 (AP)—At least half of the top-flight bridge players of the East will be out of the running tonight when the finals for the Julian Goldman pair championship are played at Hotel Roosevelt.

Here are a few who failed to survive: Theodore A. Lightner a favorite partner of Mrs. Ely Culbertson; the imperturbable Willard S. Karn, of the "Four Horsemen"; the keen philosopher-mathematician, Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz; Walter Malowan and S. Stearn, of the Cavendish Club; George Reith and George Unger, of the Knickerbocker.

STARS WHO SURVIVE.

Among the victors are P. Hal Sims, rugged captain of the "Horsemen," and his running-mate, "Ossie" Jacoby; Mrs. Culbertson, whose sectional top score attests her brilliance, and her partner, W. J. Huske; David Burnstine, of the "Horsemen," and Howard Schenken, of Cavendish; the saturnine Sidney Lenz, veteran of a hundred battles, and Commander Winfield Liggett, Jr., retired naval officer, who plays bridge because it is a gentleman's game.

The finals also will be played in two other tournaments, the mixed team of four event for the Wilbur C. Whitehead Memorial city championship trophy and the teachers' tournament for the Banfield Cup.

LITTLE SLAM MADE

There were many excellent hands last night, including the following, which netted Mrs. Culbertson and Huske a little slam in spades:

NORTH
♠—A 4
♡—8 6 2
◇—Q 4 3 2
♣—10 9 7

WEST (Huske)	EAST (Mrs. Culbertson)
♠—Q 9 8 7	♠—K 6 5 3 2
♡—K 9 7 4 3	♡—A Q 3
◇—10	◇—A 9 6
♣—K J 2	♣—A 8

SOUTH
♠—J 10
♡—10
◇—K J 8 7 5
♣—Q 6 5 4 3

The Bidding: East, one spade; South, pass; West, three spades; North, pass; East, six spades (a daring bid that utilized every possible value); all pass.

South opened the 10 of hearts, which Mrs. Culbertson took in the closed hand, returning a spade, which North took with ace. North failed to return a heart (the only play that could have defeated contract), and led a club. It was a lay-down after that.

A&P is the result of an idea—the idea that small profits would bring large sales—that large sales would make good business and that good business meant growth. The expansion of A&P from one small tea store to the world's largest Tea and Coffee organization proves the soundness of the idea. The same principle applied to other foodstuffs is the reason why A&P is also the world's largest retailer of fine foods.

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

Proud Lady:

She told me how your moist lubricity
Sought to take mauling for publicity.
I asked her why she didn't use her gall
Quickly to make you rather sorrowful.
She said, "I really can't become agog
—B. C.

Lifted From Life

A native kibitzer was watching a stud poker game, getting a peek at the hole card of the player he was standing behind . . . It was a deuce with an ace showing . . . This player, after the fourth card was dealt, tried to bluff the pot—make his hand look like aces—and he bet $100 . . . Everyone who was playing dropped out but one man who had a pair of jacks . . . He was just about to drop out when the native kibitzer (who had been trying to catch this player's eye all the while) said decidedly, "Call the $100 bet!" . . . The man with the pair of jacks did and won . . . After the game was over, the winner went over to the kibitzer, thanking him for his tip—offered him $20 . . . The kibitzer promptly refused the money with many thanks . . . The player was surprised but continued to urge the kibitzer to accept the money, saying that if he hadn't tipped up he wouldn't have won the century note . . . Finally the winner asked the other man why he wouldn't accept the money and received this answer, "well, I'll tell you—If you were in the other man's shoes and you were sitting over here, I would have told him to call you . . . So, you see I'm just a rat at heart and not entitled to the money!" . . . True story, s' help me!

From Our Memo Pad:

The girl who writes the column in the Salem Normal school paper, under the name of "Dorothy Nitchell" is getting gray-haired what with the black pencils the censoring-minded pedagogues are using on her copy . . . "Herbie" Ansell should get places with his banjo strumming . . . 's nifty! . . . And does Rosslie Wynn's heart still beat for "Herbie"? . . . Charlestown residents want their telephone exchange's pretty "Alice" to get well and back to her hello-ing before "Nellie" puts on too much weight, while subbing for ailing "Alice" . . . (There's a story there.) . . . three-weeks-old Jackie Wheaton's parents are different from other parents . . . They are proud because Jackie sits up and takes notice already! . . . Frank Cornwell spends too much time arguing about where he'll play handball next . . . Everett Marshall, who'll sing out with the "Scandals" when it comes to town, has fits of temperament regularly . . . Fortunately, Ross McLean stands by and is one of the better understudies . . .

Simile

More Memos:

Roxbury's Sally Miller is suffering from peeling sunburn—yes, in all this winter freeziness . . . She's just back from Miami, much to Nettie (She Doesn't Like To Be Called Nellie) Carmell's envy . . . Why do hoofers invariably give a quick hop-skip as they exit, after those poopy bows they take? . . . Pat Rooney, Sr., wears a 4½ size shoe . . . His wife, charming Marion Bent, was the first to lead applause for her son's stepping the other night . . . But nonny will never be the dancer grand old Pat is—nor receive such ovations either, for that matter! . . . That so-called bridge shark, Carlton Russell, had the Metropolitan staff plenty sore with him when he failed to show up for his contest of 75 rubbers with James F. Magner . . . Arthur Martel has the neatest dressing room in the Hub and is a hound for wierd detective tales . . . We know a Hub newspaper editor who packed up his duds when he was a small boy and left home because his family insisted on eating celery, served with the meals . . . He couldn't stand the crunching—or rather, he couldn't take it!.

Telling on Them!

"Do you collect antiques as a hobby?" was the question asked o' Newton's income-tax expert, John Nearey, as he was showing off his antiques in his home Sunday . . . "Yes, but if I don't start making some money pretty soon I'll be selling them for a hobby," was his answer . . . When Libby Holman saw us with our little notebook, at the Mayfair, Wednesday, she tearfully yelped out, "This is Clark Gable and Reginald Denny with me!" . . . She shouldn't flatter herself that we'd believe it—not from what we hear. At any rate, she seemed to be enjoying the Harvard cherub's escorting her—what with reading his palm and inspecting his bandaid-to-his knee limb to inspect his 16 stitches . . . And, right before many startled eyes!

"SHANGHAI EXPRESS" IS SCREEN CLASSIC

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

The doors of the new Paramount swung open last night, amid a blaze o' glory. It was an all-guest house, the 1800 seats being filled by folk in full evening regalia in honor of the occasion. Notables were there, officials, film executives, and others. There was a double purpose to the gala event, first, an informal christening of the beautifully alluring home of pictures; second, the premiere of Marlene Dietrich's latest, "Shanghai Express." Throughout, the evening was a triumph. It was Boston's biggest theater night in a long time, and that feature movie may be set down right here and now as a box-office smash, certain to jam 'em in for an auspicious start in business for the Paramount.

* * *

The theater is attractive enough to assure its own prosperous future. To us it seems to possess everything needed for presentation and enjoyment of sound pictures. The initial photoplay has its magnetic points, too—the glamor of Marlene, its cast generally, its magnificent direction of Josef von Sternberg, and a certain timeliness in its story, laid in China, albeit the theme harks back to a pre-war year when the Chinese were fighting among themselves. Therefore, fans are in for a multiplied treat in visiting the new house. One must compliment Pubix for this youngest of its houses—it's a dream of a place for snug enjoyment of the screen.

Marlene Dietrich

"Shanghai Express" is a brilliant production. This is due chiefly to von Sternberg, a director—one of the few at Hollywood—who has class and a distinctive manner. Deft imaginative touches, the general swing and sweep of camera, his saying so much with the lens, and so eloquently—these points make the film stand out, even above the actors. He minimizes his dialogue, an achievement in that it brings the sound art back to prime principles. Again, one must step over star and co-workers to call attention to the work of one of the chaps who too seldom get credit; in this case, it is Lee Garmes, one of the best of American movie cameramen. His craft speaks its own praise. You will have judged by all this that the Paramount organization threw its best into "Shanghai Express."

* * *

Here we are now—all set to go! Master's introduction. Intriguing, sets it up a taste for drama of life, making you eager with anticipation. A train is starting from Peking for no less a place than news-spotlighted Shanghai. A motley array of passengers. East meeting West. A British officer and the "Shanghai Lily" whom he had wooed years before she took the downward path. A Chinese revolutionary, a missionary, a gambler, a dishonored French officer, an opium smuggler, an Oriental lady of leisure—you see them as potential factors in the play to come. Von Sternberg buries them all their joys, their woes. Most cleverly and most amusingly he brings the outline lovers, Clive Brook and Miss Dietrich, face to face.

The story is not too strong at every angle, but von Sternberg makes it sing its way onward. Like the train that rushes onward through the night. The rat-tat-tat of a machine-gun interrupts—the revolutionaries are in control. Warner Oland is the villain, head of the rebels. He holds Brook as hostage, turn his attention to the "Lily," and to Brook when the Briton defends the outcast woman. Then the "Lily" makes her Shanghai gesture—she will sacrifice herself to save her lover from the villain's hate. Anna May Wong is the life-saver, and her thrust of a dagger saves the moment for the kind of ending audiences yearn for.

* * *

Miss Dietrich is again revealed as an actress of beauty and fascination, and her admirers will acclaim her for this new effort. The top performer, in our opinion, is Brook, and but a little behind him, Miss Wong, who makes her little part stand out large. Oland is satisfactory. The comedy is supplied by a couple of veterans, Eugene Pallette and Louise Closser Hale.

RANK HIGH AMONG FILM FAVORITES

Conchita Supervia in Concert

By MOSES SMITH

Conchita Supervia, Spanish singer whose performance in "Carmen" a few weeks ago caused such widespread and varied comment, gave her first Boston concert last night at Symphony Hall. And the net result of the issue remained more or less of a deadlock.

If you liked her Carmen—and we did vociferously—you liked her singing in concert. If you disagreed with her vocal characterization of the ill-fated gypsy, you were even more violently offended by her presentation of songs. Last night's audience was apparently forewarned and contained few dissenters, for the applause was hearty, though not sensational, as it has been elsewhere. Neither was the auditorium sold out—not by many hundreds of seats. This must be a strange sight to the celebrated Conchita.

Mme. Supervia sang two airs of Rossini, and for the rest—Spanish songs. This was well, for it is in these Spanish lyrics that her most characteristic art is exhibited. Here is not the conventional or stylized singing of the Italian operatic school, or the German lieder school; nor, on the other hand, the refined salon vocalizing. It was a Spaniard come to life—costume and all—the quality of her expressive voice being supplemented by facial expressions, gestures and other non-musical means. Which is not to say that she did not sing very beautifully, a mistress of the technique as well as the art of song. In such a work as Nin's "Chant Elegiaco (Gitano" (as in many of the Spanish numbers) she used a marvellously controlled and exceedingly beautiful coloratura to effect purely emotional results.

Yes, we'll vote again for Mme. Supervia.

NEWCOMER DIX'S LEADING LADY

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Feb. 26.—What will happen to Gwill Andre, alluring Swedish model? She is one of the most beautiful women foreign or otherwise, who has ever stepped foot into Hollywood. Will she become a second Garbo or will she merely become another movie actress? I put the question to David Selznick. He plans to exploit her in much the same manner that Garbo and Dietrich were introduced.

Louella O. Parsons

Dietrich made her debut opposite Gary Cooper, well known male star. Garbo was first seen in "The Temptress." At that time Antonio Marreno was one of the best known film stars in pictures and Garbo was cast as his leading lady.

Retouching the Horrors

One of the best thrillers is undoubtedly "Thirteen Men" by Tiffany Thayer. It's the sort of book you don't put down until you finish. This same Mr. Thayer, it appears, has written another novel called "The Illustrious Corpse," which he has sold to Tiffany. But, as our friend Bill Shakespeare says, "Ah, here's the rub." Tiffany has no idea of competing with the avalanche of horror thrillers made by the other companies. They will treat "The Illustrious Corpse" in a [illegible] comedy vein, probably somewhat in the order of "Seven Keys to Baldpate."

Another War Film

Plenty of conferences are scheduled next week when Walter Wanger arrives in town. He leaves New York today and is due here Monday. One of the first decisions to be made will be on the cast for "The Bitter Tea of General Yen," a novel by Grace Zaring Stone. I reproached Harry Cohn for doing what all the other companies are doing, making a Chinese picture. This one, he told me, will be different. It's the story of an American girl, married to a naval commander who happens to be in Shanghai during the current war, go into immediate production and will be co-directed by Elliot Nugent and James Flood. Robert Lord will adapt it.

"New York Town"

We are always glad to hear when one of our colleagues cracks through and sells a story. Ward Morehouse, a New York daily columnist, has just persuaded Darryl Zanuck that his story, "New York Town," would make a grand movie. Darryl, I [illegible] s, didn't need much persuasion. He liked the story after the first reading. The picture will [illegible]

Hollywood Happenings

Eunice Martin, secretary to David Selznick, has just written a playlet called "God Save the Queen." The Writers' Club thinks well enough of it to produce it. Eunice is not only intelligent but she is pretty enough to go into movies should she ever care to give the screen a tryout. Frances Marion has just signed a new contract with Metro Goldwyn-Mayer. At the moment she is working on four separate scripts, "Three Blondes" for Marion Davies, "Fidelity" for Norma Shearer and Clark Gable, "Old Cal" for Maria Dressler and the tale of an old-maid seamstress intended for Mary Pickford. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is holding scenes in "Letty Lynton" for Louise Closser Hale until she finishes "Sky Bride" at Paramount. She is one actress for whom almost any company would be willing to hold scenes.

Norma Shearer

Good for McLaglen

Mighty good to hear of someone making a lot of money in these days when everybody is talking retrenchment. Victor McLaglen is being paid $5000 a week to make a picture in London. He gets paid from the moment he leaves Hollywood until he finishes his job. A loan arrangement was made by the Fox Company, permitting Mr. McLaglen to earn this tidy little sum. We shall probably have more of our stars going to make British pictures if that is what they are paying them. That reminds me that we haven't seen either Evelyn Brent or Lila Lee on the screen in a long time. How come? Each of them has a following and each is a good actress.

Snapshots of Hollywood

WILL H. HAYS and his attractive wife, guests of honor at a dinner party given by the WATTERSON ROTHACKERS. WATTIE, AILEEN and their daughter, VIRGINIA, leave for New York tonight, possibly for a trip abroad. CONSTANCE BENNETT in dark blue velvet, cut low in the back, spent the evening playing bridge. JOAN, accompanied by GENE MARKEY, looked very smart in a white lace frock. The ERNEST TORRENCES, MRS. HENRY KING, LOIS WILSON, WINSLOW FELIX and several others were absorbed in a game of cards. GEORGE FITZMAURICE home, sick in bed with the flu. LIONEL BARRYMORE at the ROTHACHERS, reported his wife improving. She has been critically ill with the flu. CONSTANCE TALMADGE NETCHER in a black Carnegie frock, voted one of the most stunning looking women at the dinner. RUDY VALLEE, much thinner, at the Brown Derby, lunching with FAY WEBB. FAY all decked out in new spring clothes in honor of her husband's arrival in town.

FAIR LILLIAN RETURNS

Symphony Orchestra to Visit New York

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will visit New York and other cities in the coming week, giving the next regular pair of concerts in Symphony Hall on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, March 11 and 12. Dr. Serge Koussevitzky will include the music of Leo Sowerby, the American composer, for the first time at these concerts, performing his orchestral poem, "Prairie."

The program will also include Philip Emanuel Bach's orchestral concerto in D major.

Branson De Cou Will Show Egypt Pictures

Branson De Cou announces another series of "Dream Pictures" to be given in Symphony Hall next month. There will be three of them on successive Saturday matinees at 2:30, March 5, 12 and 19. "Fascinating Egypt" is the title of his first picture. "The South Sea Wonderlands," his second subject, embraces the Hawaiian Islands, Samoa, Fiji, New Zealand, Tasmania, East and South Africa. "The Alaskan Wonderlands" provides his last "Dream Picture."

Varied Novelties on London Singers' List

A "sociable" program is announced by John Goss and the London Singers for their first Boston appearance. The English group will give a recital in Symphony Hall on Tuesday evening, March 1.

McCormack Appearance

John McCormack will give a recital in Symphony Hall on Sunday afternoon, March 20. This will be the second and last appearance of the season here by the Irish tenor.

Ruth Chatterton Film for Fenway and Modern

"Tomorrow and Tomorrow," starring Ruth Chatterton, is the feature at the Fenway and Modern starting Saturday. Paul Lukas supports Miss Chatterton. The other photoplay on the program is "Cheaters at Play."

Tuesday Symphony

The fifth concert of the Tuesday afternoon series by the Boston Symphony Orchestra will take place in Symphony Hall on March 8 at 3 o'clock.

Bennett Film Draws Crowds

The attendance at the RKO Keith's theater since the opening of Constance Bennett's newest film, "Lady With a Past," results in the holding over of the picture for a second week. Supported by a spic-and-di cast, headed by Ben Lyon and David Manners, the blonde star is seen in the role of Venice Mull, a member of New York's fashionable younger set, a girl of unimpeachable social standing who cannot attract men. Popularity continues to elude her until she goes to Paris, where, under the expert tutelage of a dashing gigolo, she begins to acquire beaux and trades her future for a colorful past.

Starting with a story which is one of the best yet assigned to her, Miss Bennett in this picture was given a hit director, sterling support and an exceedingly lavish production.

Other attractions with the Bennett film include latest news, a comedy, an amusing cartoon and organ music by Leo Weber.

Maybe I'm Wrong (About Hollywood)

—By JOHN P. MEDBURY—

Retouching the Horrors

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 26—Jimmy Finlayson, born in Glasgow, and now Hollywood's big saving and thrift man, has the unique faculty of being able to combine pleasure with business. His latest success was when he went to a masquerade ball dressed as a pay phone and everybody kept dropping nickels in him all evening.

The Crack of the Day

Little Jackie Cooper's mother was scolding him the other afternoon for getting his trousers all covered with mud. "What's the idea," she asked, "in falling down in your good pants?" "I couldn't help it, mom!" answered Jackie. "I fell so quickly that I didn't have time to take them off."

FRIENDS SEEK SOLID SOUTH FOR GARNER

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 26 (CNS)—The home folks of John Garner are not going to waste any time in projecting him into the presidential field regardless of his own wishes. They are just going to go. In fact they are already on their way.

One of the first features of the program they are now engaged in weaving out here in Texas and Washington as the imminent acceptance of the Roosevelt challenge for delegates in every one of the Southern states.

SENTIMENT GROWS

Several of the Garner orators in the West when asked to explain the Speaker feel the same way about it. They are sure that when the Democrats in both sections appreciate the opportunity to nominate the next President a national campaign for John Garner will begin.

Since the extraordinary demonstration of John Garner's popularity in San Antonio on Monday, the favorable reactions from all parts of the country have been little less than astounding.

An avalanche of letters and telegrams have come to state leaders who started the Garner drive towards the White House. Mayor C. M. Chambers, San Antonio, told the writer that several thousand letters and telegrams had come to him and his associates approving of the undertaking.

RESENT ROOSEVELT METHODS

One of the chief factors in the plan to put John Garner against Franklin D. Roosevelt in the Southern States was virtually dictated by resentment against the methods employed by the supporters of the New York governor.

As recently as three weeks ago T. Whit Davidson, who sponsored the mass meeting to organize the state's Roosevelt-for-President Club, made an offer to Speaker Garner's friends that aroused their indignation.

He offered to make a deal with Mr. Garner's friends to permit delegates favoring Roosevelt to give the Speaker a few complimentary votes in return for the full delegation now needed. Davidson based this suggestion on his assertion that Garner won't have a chance.

The retort of Mayor Chambers, to whom this statement was made, was that the leaders favoring Roosevelt would come over to the Garner side within a month. His prediction was correct. At the mass meeting on Monday night Smith, representing Davidson, pledged the support of the Roosevelt followers to John Garner without qualifications.

Unemployed Lose Election Jobs

Election jobs will not be given to unemployed in Wakefield as a result of the protest of precinct wardens, who unanimously decided against the plan. They contended that counting the vote by experienced officers was sufficiently lengthy, but to use inexperienced persons would delay the count and might result in serious mistakes.

NEBRASKA SEEN AS GARNER'S IF HE WISHES

Washington, Feb. 26. The scramble of Democrats in all sections of the country to climb aboard the rapidly flying Garner-for-President bandwagon today had spread to Nebraska.

Enthusiastic supporters of the Speaker who have put organized Garner for President Club in Omaha predicted the Texan would sweep the state and capture the 16 delegates to the Democratic national convention if he would permit use of his name in the primary, April 12.

In accordance with the policy of rounding up key contests near the center of interest concern of the Speaker is reported, Representative Rayburn of Texas, speaking as a friend of Garner informed the Nebraskans: "It is desired that Mr. Garner's name be not entered in the presidential primary in the state of Nebraska."

MAY BE DRAFTED

This policy adopted in the case of Georgia, where Judge G. H. Howard died as a Garner proxy candidate, apparently will be applied in California and other states in which the law provides for the formal contest of the Speaker.

At the same time the Speaker's determination to stick strictly to his knitting in the House and his refusal to lift a finger to encourage the movement to draft him for the presidency was disclosed in a telegram from Garner to Mrs. Claude De Van Watts, president of the Texas W. C. T. U. Mrs. Van Watts asked the Speaker:

"Thousands of prohibition women are anxious to join Garner for President clubs, but first must know how you stand on prohibition. Are you for or against repeal of the 18th Amendment?"

Is NOT HIS ISSUE.

In response the Speaker declared he had no intention of making any statement regarding questions which Congress does not have up for immediate consideration, but was devoting himself to preserving harmony within the ranks of Democrats in the House to solve the problems of the nation. He said:

"I am not particularly interested as to how my determination in this respect will affect my political future."

He voted against the 18th amendment, but since it was written into the Constitution, he has used for all law enforcement legislation.

Youth Leaps on Car to Snatch Handbag

Another woman motorist driver was robbed of her handbag last night by a new method. She, a Miss Natalie Kohr of 69 Revere st., told police that she was turning into Revere st. and a youth jumped on the running board of her car and snatched the bag on the seat beside her. There have been several such robberies lately.

Two Dead in Barge Fire

Weehawken, N. J., Feb. 26 (INS)—Two men were burned to death today when the deckhouse of an ash barge moored in the Hudson river caught fire. The victims

Salvador Has Three 'Envoys' in U. S., Only One Recognized

Washington, Feb. 26. The three Central American republics of El Salvador today had the distinction of being represented here by three envoys.

They are Dr. Pedro J. de Leyva, Don Roberto Membreno and Luis Anderson.

The State Department has refused to receive Anderson, but has accredited the other two.

The department has also refused to receive the credentials of Dr. Leyva, the ambassador designate of Honduras.

Boat Upsets; 70 Missing

Calcutta, India, Feb. 26 (AP)—It was feared today that as many as 70 persons were drowned when a launch capsized in the Hooghly river.

SALES TAX PLAN NEARLY READY

Washington, Feb. 26 (CNS)—With Senator Garner's support a House Ways and Means sub-committee today prepared rates for a general sales tax to raise about $800,000,000 in revenue.

The full committee will meet this week and tax bill to the House within one or eight days, according to Chairman Crisp, who framed the sales tax plan.

Tentative rates agreed upon by the committee would place a tax of 1½ per cent upon purchases of all commodities. The tax would be levied at the time of first sales of the commodities. Purchases of necessities would not be taxed.

Everything in the tax bill has been cut today with a view to keeping the sales tax features of the bill by the full committee early next week.

In throwing the powerful influence behind the sales tax program Speaker Garner said:

"I am in favor of a manufacturers' sales tax. At first it was thought we could raise the necessary revenue by a few excise taxes but now we must turn to a more general manufacturers' sales tax. We will have to raise about $800,000,000 in revenue from sources other than higher income, corporation and estate taxes."

In federal court Willard produced a quarter and two pennies and said it was all the money he had. He had appeared to explain why he owes a $14,000 judgment.

"And the market I am supposed to own belongs to my sister-in-law," he added. "My home in Glendale and the market are heavily mortgaged. Business is very bad."

RASKOB SCORES SECTIONALISM

New York, Feb. 26 (CNS)—John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, had served notice on his party that if it hopes to win the presidency this year it must guard against sectionalism.

Speaking at a meeting of the New York Young Democratic Club held at the Hotel Shelton last night, Mr. Raskob warned:

"A serious attempt is being made to create feeling in the parts between the North and the South."

His effort he ascribed largely to the Republican press, which he charged is trying to divide the party now by sectional appeals.

The national chairman covered a wide range of topics in his informal forecast of issues in power of Speaker Garner. He said:

"In Congress the party has made a remarkable record under the able direction of Speaker Garner. From bankers in Wall st. and business men the party is getting all sorts of applause for the way it is handling itself."

Written for Smokers who want Hard-pan Facts

YOU'VE seen it in Movies... on bill-boards... in newspapers... and you've heard it over the radio. The famous slogan, "They Satisfy."

It means Chesterfields click... give smokers what they want. Now let us tell you the "reason why"!

Smoke-satisfaction in Chesterfield comes from just one thing... our rigid rule of making every Chesterfield cigarette the very best that money and science can produce.

That's why Chesterfield tobaccos are the mildest that grow. That's why the paper that's wrapped around Chesterfield is the whitest and purest cigarette paper made. That's why we not only blend our tobaccos... but cross-blend them. To bring out the fine flavor that is so definitely Chesterfield.

Everything the best... that's the whole Chesterfield story. Milder... taste better... pure. Good... they've got to be, because they're made that way. That's the reason why Chesterfields satisfy.

THIS IS LIFE

EFFICIENCY, NOT ECONOMY SHOULD BE AIM OF U. S. BUREAU SHAKEUP

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE NEWS COMES that certain local federal employes of the superior rank are to be dismissed, or rather that their jobs are to be abolished. This appears to be the first step in the long-heralded drive to practice economy in the national government by reorganizing the government bureaus. There seems to be a universal agreement—except perhaps among Washington politicians that drastic reorganization is necessary. Mr. Hoover is not the only president who has emphasized its desirability.

The Democratic majority in the House has taken hold of the problem, but if advance notices mean anything the idea of the legislative branch of the government is primarily directed toward economy. The process seems to be merely that of abolishing offices and letting the axe fall on office holders, particularly Republican office holders.

• • •

Deep-Rooted Evils of Bureaucracy

But any familiarity with our national government will show that merely lopping off salaried heads is the very least reform that is necessary and can be made. The root of the trouble lies deeper, in an old, long standing multiplication of bureaus without rhyme or reason, the scattering of similar duties and controls among different departments, amounting even to competition between departments and the proliferation of unnecessary bureaus that should be completely exturpated, not merely made more economical in their operation.

The curious thing about the situation is that recognition of this state of affairs hardly exists among the public at large. We pride ourselves in United States upon the teaching of civics in our public schools. Civics is the study of the science of government and its practical applications. But there is reason to fear that the average book of civics used in our public schools or even in our colleges contents itself with generalizations and almost never allows itself to criticize extravagances, abuses, and anomalies of organization which are at the root of all the trouble.

For instance, I have on my bookshelves at least half a dozen volumes of civics of high school and college grade. A rapid but fairly careful examination of the indices of these books reveals virtually no material on the bureaucratic system of our government and certainly not the least hint that it is generally regarded as an utterly unscientific and unbusinesslike system, the result of a long process of congressional irresponsibility and greed. No wonder that no public opinion on the subject can be mobilized.

System Clogged by Red Tape

Only in Professor Penfield Robert's "Introduction to American Politics," (Harcourt, Brace) an admirable and critical little book, is there a chapter on "Uncle Sam as a Business Man," which contains many interesting and starting facts.

"No private corporation would do business in so unsystematic a fashion as the federal government. A single example will show this. Take a ship sailing into any great American harbor, such as New York or Boston. On leaving the open sea it enters a channel dredged by the War Department, which for no apparent reason has charge of all the navigable waters within the United States. The channel is marked by lighthouses which are in charge of the Department of Commerce. It is mapped by a coast and geodetic survey, also a bureau of the Department of Commerce, but if the ship is wrecked the crew will probably be rescued by life savers of the coast guard, which is under the Treasury Department. If the government were logically organized, all these functions might well be performed by a single department of public works.

"The Interior Department is the best example of how haphazard is the present organization of Uncle Sam's various enterprises. It includes among other things officials in charge of the following: Public lands, pensions, education, Indian affairs, patents, reclamation, farm economics (though the Department of Agriculture has a bureau of agricultural economics and of home economics), the geological survey, the bureau of mines, the national parks and St. Elizabeth's Hospital for the Insane!"

Such an illustration—only a possible one out of many—should make it perfectly clear the main reason for reorganizing our top-heavy and proliferating bureaucracy is not primarily economic, the abolition of useless or competing jobs, but merc practical business efficiency. No big business in the country could carry on with such haphazard, accidental, scattering, illogical organization—or lack of it. And the United States government is perhaps the biggest business enterprise in the world today.

Good Business Methods Needed

The Democratic majority in the House objects to Mr. Hoover's being given power to make this necessary reorganization himself, as provided for in Congressman Dallinger's bill. This newspaper prefers to have the work done by Congress instead of by the President, on the ground that the President is trying to usurp the powers of Congress and that his previous attempts at government by commission have worked out badly and expensively.

There is, however, this one consideration to be weighed. There is not a business man in America who does not believe that such things being properly in the executive department and that they can be best done by the executive department. Apart from political considerations, that is almost an axiom of industry. Allowing Congress to reform its own errors and blunders is like trying to reorganize a great factory by means of a committee of workingmen. Confusion would be worse confounded, and the workmen's conveniences and privileges would be looked at rather than the necessity of pitiless and impartial efficiency.

Mr. Hoover may be thought unfitted to do the job. In that case, let us wait for Mr. Smith, or Roosevelt, or Garner, or Baker to do it. For obviously it can be done satisfactorily only by the executive branch of our government.

The American Physical and Optical Societies are meeting jointly at Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology through the rest of this week. The delegates are being given the fullest benefit of study of the technical equipment at Technology. Among those who are attending are, left to right, Mrs. T. R. Wilkins, of Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. P. SPECTROSCOPE AT TECH KEY TO UNIVERSE

Convention Guests "Step Off" at Sun and Venus to Study Conditions

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

A tour of the entire universe was made by scientists and students at M. I. T. last night.

Using the wonderful instrument known as the spectroscope the imaginary tour was accomplished on the wings of light.

INSPECT SUN

On the atmosphere of the planet but not of Venus the waters from the earth found oxygen and water vapor both essential for life. In the atmosphere of the sun they discovered at least 60 of the 92 elements known on the earth.

The famous rings around Saturn were found not to be solid discs but consisting of myriads of tiny satellites or moons.

Prof. Henry Norris Russell, Princeton Observatory director, presented such an imaginary survey in his address on "Revealing the Universe Through the Spectroscope," given before the joint session of the American Physical and Optical Societies.

"MASTER KEY" OF SCIENCE

Dr. Russell said:

"Very rarely does any branch of science find a master key which unlocks the doors not only to one but to many realms of knowledge. But the spectroscope at least is such a key."

The world's most complete laboratory of spectroscopes has been built at M. I. T. The essence of this instrument is to separate each of various colors or rates of vibrations from these separate bands of colors, the vibrating states of the atoms are determined.

As a remote nebula or island universe run away from the center, it take place in the vibration or stuff the light discharged by them. From these changes, showing slowing of vibrations, the expansion of the universe is proved, said Dr. Russell.

ARTIFICIAL EYE

Dr. Brian O'Brien of Rochester University has made an artificial human eye which may prove useful in television. In this device the Western physicist has photoelectric cell placed behind a glass box containing certain chemical substances and a small pool like the eye he got more sensitive to certain colors than to the rest.

Dr. I. H. Godlove of the New York Museum of Science and Industry has discovered that many persons are color blind without knowing it. Among them are professional painters and interior decorators. More men than women show abnormal color vision. Dr. Godlove's investigation shows.

Dr. Russell's speech was part of the program of the joint convention of Tech and Harvard. The guests will be entertained at luncheon by Harvard University and there will be a dinner at the Parker House tomorrow evening.

At the Airport

With the Candid Camera

By CANDID CAMERA

I went air-minded yesterday and hiked over to the Boston airport, where cold days do not halt activities. I got a peep at the plane Lone Star, which halted there the other day on a South American flight attempt, but that isn't news for me—

Did you know an airplane had a can-opener? It has. This bit of equipment, held by Ray Bean is fastened to gas tanks. When anything goes wrong and less weight is the order, this can-opener gets to work and out goes the gasoline.

I want on to know Air-Patrolman Daniel J. Eldridge. He hopped into his plane to pose for me. Eldridge is the airport's flying cop.

I thought they were fooling me, but Dr. Karl Otto Lange, of M. I. T. said it was true. They go up in planes to get bugs. When they get bugs, the pressure and humidity in the particular upper currents are measured. The bugs are held in these small glass holders.

DOG OBSERVES 19TH BIRTHDAY

With his pretty mistress, Miss Pauline Miller, 18 of Hooker st., Allston, he paid a visit to the Boston Evening American out of gratitude for his recovery by the paper 10 years ago after he lost his way home.

Miss Miller, then eight, appealed to this newspaper at that time, and Buster was found and returned safe and sound.

Buster has lost a little of his friskiness of ten years ago but still he carries his age well.

HE'S STILL THANKFUL

"Buster" Miller is 19 years old today. They're giving him a party at his Allston home. Here's the old timer with his owner, Miss Pauline Miller. Ten years ago the dog was lost. The Boston Evening American found him. So "Buster" dropped in to say "thank you" in barks. (Staff photo.)

ROW LOOMS IN MEDFORD

Physicians of Medford have united in a protest to Mayor John H. Burke against the appointment of a second civilian to the board of health to replace a physician, making two civilians and one physician on the board.

The term of Dr. Richard A. Drake expires this month and Mayor Burke has nominated ex-Alderman John H. Honney as his successor. Action on the mayor's appointments comes up at the meeting of the aldermen next week and a hot fight is expected on a number of the appointments.

Members of the medical profession waited upon the mayor to protest reducing the number of physicians on the board of health, but the mayor informed them that he would stand squarely behind his appointee for the position and would not withdraw the name.

Eskimo Shepherd Dog Reported Lost

Koona, an Eskimo shepherd dog six years old, disappeared from the home of Joseph Boyle of 143 Highland st., Roxbury, Friday. He was seen in the yard of the Dudley Street School with some children that afternoon. Koona is owned by Mrs. Paul Kallenberg of 44 Manthorne rd., West Roxbury, and is one of six dogs of his breed in this country.

Final Date Set for Passover Packages

The Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society of Boston has received notification from its committee in Europe stating that all orders for Passover packages to be sent to Russia must reach Riga not later than April 1.

FIRE PRECEDED BY EXPLOSION

Flames of suspicious origin raced up the broad staircase of the four-story stone building at 124-126 Broad st., causing estimated damage of over $30,000 to valuable stores of leather belting and lumber last night.

A hot-air explosion scattered glass from the bottom floor windows on Broad st. and police turned in an alarm.

The first floor, where the flames started is occupied by the Boston Belting Co., and the upper three stories are occupied by the Geo. Cameron Carpentering Co.

Colt Seeks Clue From Mother of Lola

What Has Gone Before

At 11.30 on New Year's Eve, Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night-Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire, is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Lola tells Colt her life is threatened. He takes up the case and surrounds her apartment with a police guard; but in spite of this Lola is found stricken on the floor of one of the rooms. Dougherty thinks he has a clue.

Now Read On

"SO YOU believe my daughter was murdered?" Mrs. Carewe asked in a flat voice.

Colt went on.

"Hence we may have to ask many questions that seem impertinent. I am counting on you to help us."

"But how can I help?" whispered the old woman, forcing a crumpled handkerchief against her lips.

"Simply by keeping calm and telling us everything we need to know."

"I can do both, Mr. Colt," she answered with dignity.

"Who is your daughter's lawyer?"

"Arthur Garfield Grant, down in Wall st."

"He has charge of all her important papers?"

"Yes—and he has plenty."

"Has he the key to her safe deposit boxes?"

"Yes, he has."

"Now, Mrs. Carewe, do you know anything about the death of Lola's dog and parrot?"

"I know they died—but I don't believe they were poisoned. I think Lola was superstitious that was—always a believing people were against her ...and wanting to do her harm. She was that way from a little girl."

REAL NAME IS JORGA

"Is Carewe your real name?" he asked suddenly.

"What makes you think—"

"Now, Mrs. Carewe—will you tell me?"

"Why not? My real name is Carewe. That was my maiden name."

"And you come from—"

"England. I married there. My husband was an Rumanian living in exile."

"Lola's father?"

"Yes. He deserted us in Liverpool when he was allowed to go back to his country. I have never heard from him again. I hope to God he fries in hell fire."

This last pronouncement the old woman uttered with a detached calm that struck me as quite fiendish.

"Michael Jorga."

"So your daughter's real name is Lola Jorga?"

"No—Rosita Jorga."

"How did you come to change the name?"

Lola went on the stage. She danced. We thought a new name would help—and someone suggested Lola Carewe."

"And where was your daughter educated?"

"I worked to send her to public schools—and private. How I worked! I scrubbed floors, even."

With a shrug, Colt turned to details of more immediate interest.

"Tonight?"

WENT TO THEATER

"Yes—or even earlier. How did you spend this afternoon?"

"And you got home—"

"Around 5 o'clock. Then I lay down and took a nap."

"And from then on?"

"That's not hard to remember. We all had dinner here together—Christine and Lola and I. Then they dressed to go on their parties, Mr. Rowland came for Lola and Mr. Guy Everett came for Christine and they went out. Joe they always do and left me here with the servants. I listened to the radio for a while. I soon got tired of that. Then went into my room and began reading The New Atlantis—that's my favorite book. But first I read the evening newspapers. Then I settled down to my

GETS MARRIAGE LICENSE AND VANISHES

Louise Hunting of Newton Met Writer When He Taught High School Class

Issuance of a marriage license to James Gerald Dunton of Cambridge prominent novelist, Harvard graduate and holder of a distinguished war record, has revealed his romance with a Newton girl whom he taught in the high school of that town.

Dunton explained that he met Miss Louise Hunting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hunting of Newton.

Following their engagement, Dunton went to Cambridge to attend the Harvard-Dartmouth football game. He returned to Newton and has not been seen in the latter's home since. Neither could be reached at the home of her parents in Newton.

Dunton is a native of Ohio and received his early education in the schools of that state. Since that time his stories have carried him abroad where he has traveled extensively in England, Scotland and Ireland.

It was while attending Harvard that Dunton gathered the material for his first novel, "Well Known," which spoke well of life at Harvard and served to have him a large reading.

Other novels he has written include The Maiden in Love Lane and A Maid and a Million Men. He edited "Great La Guerre," a book of best stories of the World War. He has also published several books of poetry and "The Book of Boston," and "The Story of the Theatre." A number of his stories have appeared in leading magazines of the country.

HOLDS POVERTY NOT DESTINY OF MAN

That a divinely intelligent and loving Creator has not made a man to be impoverished, any more than to be sick or sinful was the assertion made last evening by Frank Be... C. S. B. of New York, in a lecture in the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Continuing Mr. Bell said:

"Poverty like disease and sin, involves a mistaken sense of God and His work. The evil quality of poverty is not that it makes men suffer, but that it misrepresents God. The Christian aim in overcoming poverty, as in healing sickness and sin, is to the glory of God. Mere getting of money would not glorify God, but the demonstration of power over material things through spiritual understanding does 'magnify the Lord.'

The writer of Genesis affirms that divine Spirit has given man dominion over earthly things. Jesus proved this to be true and said His followers should do likewise.

"Christian Science cannot be used for the mere acquisition of money or other material things, but it is successfully employed to the overcoming of that abnormal sense of lack which is the result of ignorance of spiritual substance and which in turn bears fruit in human fear and poverty.

"Mastery of materiality is the secret of wealth and health. It is the mastery that comes to light in daily experience through the Christianly scientific cultivation of spiritual-mindedness."

HOSPITAL WORK INTERESTING

The never-ending battle of the ... against disease ... conducted by many people in part of the everyday routine of the laboratories of the Massachusetts Memorial hospitals.

The laboratories are divided into four sections under the Pathology of Pathology, Clinical Pathology, Bacteriology and Immunology, each having its own separate function in carrying on the work of the whole.

Dr. Sanford B. Hooker in charge of the Immunology Department has made notable strides in experiments to establish patterns in the determination of blood groups. He is in charge of immunizing guinea pigs and nurses in the hospital who are in danger through contact with contagious cases. At present he is working on methods to combat hay fever.

In the bacteriology group in charge of Dr. Alice Marston the study of the bacilli causing tuberculosis diphtheria and pneumonia is the major work. Experiments to discover these bacilli and the production of serums to counteract them are part of the everyday work of these.

Each laboratory head has his own particular problems although their efforts all are directed in working for the common betterment of the medical science through the hospital.

WRIT ASKED IN STOCK CASE

Justin F. Grant of Boston has started proceedings in the United States District Court to restrain John B. Cunningham, receiver for the Boston Continental National Bank from disposing of certain shares of stock pledged for the payment of a note for $13,000.

Grant states in his bill of complaint that he had the note in the bank since 1930 and turned it over to Everett M. Hagar in February 1931. It is said that Hagar was president of the bank. He claims that he never authorized Hagar or any other officer of the bank to transfer or negotiate the note of the stock.

He also states that he was informed by the receiver that the stock was pledged to the bank as collateral to secure the payment of the $13,000 note, which Grant denies signing.

The complaint will come up for a hearing on Feb. 29.

WOMEN VANISH, MYSTIC SOUGHT

Police throughout the state today sought a Back Bay Hindu mystic believed to have lured three women ... the mother of two children, to flee their homes with him, taking the children and $100 of the savings of their father.

Complaint against the seer was filed at police headquarters by Maria Mahaquiao, of 90 Appleton st. South End, who is a member of a Hawaiian orchestra in a Boston restaurant. Returning to his home early yesterday he found his wife, Mrs. Vera Pettigrew Mahaquiao, 20 their two babies, Joseph, 18 months and Maria 6 months, his wife's mother, Mrs. Dora Pettigrew and his wife's sister, Sylvia, 18, missing.

Knowing of their friendship with the mystic, he went to the latter's headquarters on Massachusetts ave. and found that he had disappeared along with a new auto he purchased Wednesday.

Police broadcast a description of the women and children, the seer and the car throughout the state. They decided the woman had gone off in the car with the seer, who is known as Rajah Abdul Khir.

BRILLIANT INAUGURAL AT NEW PARAMOUNT

BOSTON GOES HOLLYWOOD AT OPENING

By RUTH MILGOLDBEE

Hollywood moved to Boston last night when the opening of the new Paramount Theater brought out Boston's ultra ultra and a curious throng of many hundreds.

Lights and cameras directors of ceremonies, and all the city's most important people helped to carry off the premiere of Marlene Dietrich's "Shanghai Express with an eclat rarely accorded an opening anywhere

BEAUTIES EVERYWHERE

Beautiful women, and so beautiful that they elicited comment from Governor Joseph B. Ely and handsome escorts presented an absorbing picture for the eager spectators.

It was a moving picture opening but it was a social event of calendar importance to Boston

To those unable to attend the invitation opening of the new Paramount, Governor Ely described over the air the beauties of the theater, the loveliness of the city's fair ones and the stalwart manliness of Boston's he men, of whom there are many, the chief executive remarked.

With Mrs. Ely, the governor was forced recently to plough his way, with police escort, through the crowds

"This is a very beautiful theater," he said into the microphone over which Linus Travers, of the Yankee Network, reigned supreme.

"I see so many beautiful women and so many well-dressed gentlemen. And the lobby is decorated with them and flowers. Mrs. Ely and I are glad to be here and we know we are going to have a good time."

GUESTS IN MOVIES

Guests streamed through the lobby and into the orchestra and were photographed by a movie camera. Their smiling faces later were flashed on the screen.

First to address the radio audience was Edward M. Gallagher, acting mayor of Boston. He said:

"I desire to extend to the officials of the Public Theater Corp. and to F. Ralph Branton, director of the Paramount Theater, my hearty congratulations for the establishment in Boston of this beautiful motion picture theater which will present the most interesting character of entertainment."

Supt. of Police Michael Crowley also paid tribute to the officials of the company as did Edward V. Bremer, building commissioner, John M. Casey, city censor, Col G W Cochen, Fire Commissioner, Chief Henry A. Fox of the fire department, J. J. Maginn, executive secretary, Allied Theaters of Massachusetts; Joan Lowell, Boston Record; Helen Eager, Boston Traveler Marjorie Adams, Boston Globe; G Ralph Branton, general manager of Paramount-Publix Corp.; David Chatkin, vice-president of the company, and Thomas Bailey, New England district manager

BUS PUNCTURES BUILDING WALL

Miss Marjorie Flynn, waitress, and two customers in the Shirley Marston restaurant in Columbus ave., were definitely sure that a four foot square oil painting on the wall had danced on the end of the stout wire from which it hung and Marjorie was so sure that she went over and pulled the picture aside. It revealed a considerable portion of the left rear mudguard of a big New York bus

The bus had rolled down a ramp in the bus station of the New England Transportation Co. next door. It came to a stop after it had torn a jagged hole in the wall of the restaurant directly behind the picture.

PAY DEDUCTION IRKS CAMPBELL

Describing Mayor Curley as a "politicat Dick Turpin" Clerk Francis A. Campbell pounded on the vaulted doors of the city treasury in protest against the removal of a city pay from his monthly envelope.

Upon receiving no response it was five minutes after closing time last night the clerk slapped a written protest into the mail box and promised to take the financial officers of the city to court next week.

To reporters Clerk Campbell explained that it was not the $16.60 taken from his envelope to relieve the unemployed that bothered him so much as the principle of the thing

'All Aboard for Dixie!' Training Camp Pranks. Ever See Badger Fite?

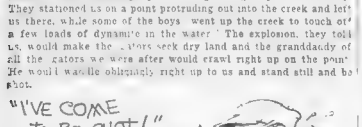
Hitting Trail South With Braves and Sox

Toot! Toot! All aboard for Dixie! Braves hit the trail for St Pete, today, and Red Sox head for Savannah on Sunday. The annual baseball hegira is on. Heckle, and how we'd like to be with 'em! Lucky dogs, Joe Cashman "Buster" Gillooley and the baseball scribes. While we're coughing and sneezing and shivering up here where the breaking waves dash high on New England's stern and rockbound coast, Joe and Buster will be lolling on the sands in the shade of a sheltering palm or trying to watch the big Southern moon come up out of the bayou and gaze into the orbs of a southern beauty with the come hither look in them at the same time. Joe Cashman is a veteran of the Southern training camp. He knows all about 'em, get fights and invitations. This is Buster Gillooley's first trip South Buster will get his, boys Buster will get his." Seems as if it was only yesterday and we were a cub reporter going on our first Southern baseball adventure. Did we get ours, Old Dears? Did we get ours! And then some!

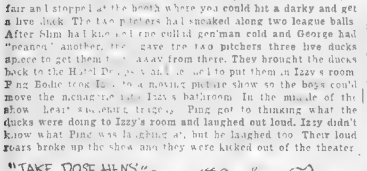
They couldn't feel us with any "badger fight." Oh no we knew all about them. It was an alligator hunt they got us off on We gave the boys their opening when we started boasting about what a mighty huntsman we were and had shot moose, b'ar, wildcats 'n everything. Would we like to hunt alligators? Would we! Lead us to 'em! The creek back of us was full of 'gators. But we didn't want any of those small fry, they told us It seemed that 'a few miles out there was a creek which housed the grandaddy of all the 'gators a big bull tryng 24 feet long. Would we like to bag him? We'd we! The hunt was arranged for the next night.

The few miles turned out to be almost twenty. We left the road and stumbled along a path leading through a palmetto swamp They stationed us on a point protruding out into the creek and left us there, while some of the boys went up the creek to touch off a few loads of dynamite in the water The explosion, they told us, would make the 'gators seek dry land and the granddaddy of all the gators we were after would crawl right up on the point He would waddle obligingly right up to us and stand still and be shot.



One hour Two hours Three hours in that miasmal swamp The mosquitoes and every other tropical insect in the world picked us out for dinner. Still another hour of waiting, cussing and waiting for that gator. He was wending over to the palms before we realized we ain't been seeing he'some'ing beside's insects Twenty miles walk back to camp Twenty miles of scratching, moaning and cussing That was our southern baseball initiation Buster Watch you step Kid Lovers the badgers and gators alone But you'll get yours, boy. You'll get yours, anyway

Izzy Kaplan the famous photographer was the butt of more training camp jokes than anyone we know. We recall Izzy's first trip South He just had come over from Russia Could only speak a little English It was with the Yankees at Macon, Georgia Pitchers Slim Caldwell and George Mogridge had gone to a Negro fair and stopped at the booth where you could hit a darky and get a live duck The two pitchers had sneaked along two league balls After Slim had kicked one cullud gen'man cold and George had "peaned" another, they gave the two pitchers three live ducks apiece to get them out away from there. They brought the ducks back to the Hotel Dempsey and decided to put them in Izzy's room Fine Eddie took Izzy to a movie picture show so the boys could move the menagerie into Izzy's bathroom In the middle of the show Izzy suddenly thought Ping got to thinking what the ducks were doing to Izzy's room and laughed out loud. Izzy didn't know what Ping was laughing at, but he laughed too Then loud roars broke up the show and they were kicked out of the theater.



Izzy came back to the hotel and went to his room. The ducks had decided the bathtub and room were too small and had waddled and flown around Izzy's bed chamber in a wild scramble. Down the elevator came Izzy, storming up to the hotel clerk, who the boys had "planted"

"Take dose hens oudt my room!" demanded Izzy.

"Yes, hens," exclaimed Izzy, and then, in an endeavor to explain, gave a loud "Quack! Quack! Quack.

Another time down at Cap Huston's place at Dover Hall they took Izzy to 'visit some moonshiners" deep in the woods. The "moonshiners" caught sight of Izzy and opened fire. With the bullets spattering up the dust all around him and whining over his head Izzy broke all records dusting down the back trail. Babe Ruth had been "planted" in the living room. Babe had daubed his head and shirt with red paint. As Izzy, frantic with fright, came puffing into the room the first sight that met his gaze was Babe stretched out in a pool of blood and apparently gasping his last. Even scared stiff, it was business first with Izzy.

Tribesmen Hit Trail for St. Pete Today

By JOE CASHMAN

The Braves hop off for St. Pete today

Their chartered choo-choo pulls out of the South Station at 4:30 p. m.

Aboard will be a party of 12, if nobody misses the train. That number will be increased by three before the special reaches its destination early Sunday morning.

Ball players will be very much in the minority during this particular jaunt southward Only two will leave here and both one more will be picked up en route

The pair who will give the camera men an excuse to come down to the depot to snap the getaway are Pitcher Rube Brown of Hull, Mass., and Catcher Benson of Whitman, who will be going to the Grapefruit Belt for the first time.

Bob Brown

The other excursionists will include Secretary Ed Cunningham Trainers Jimmy Neary and Parky McPartland, Royal Rooters Peter McKenna of Woburn, George Murphy of Lewiston Me and Nate Krock of Boston, and a quarter of scribes

When the "rattler" reaches New York, Judge Fuchs will put in his appearance, or so he promises This will be a new experience for the jurist, anyway. In other years he has gone to camp either before or after the players

At Philadelphia, Catcher Al Spohrer's bald noggin is scheduled to emerge from the midnight darkness of the train sheds

Manager Bill McKechnie will climb aboard at Washington, but the rest of the gang won't be able to swear to the pilot's presence until some hours later. For it will be 4 a. m. or thereabouts when the special catches up with him.

Washington behind, the privy will be complete as far as Ed Cunningham knows That doesn't mean any

Jack Russell

If unchaperoned ball players are the words of Ye Newspaper Guy never show how they'll go and how they'll end up when they are ordered to camp didn't differ from the homes to camp but in the bedroom.

There will be a dozen Braves batterymen headed for St Pete via various other routes in the next 48 hours. It will be surprising indeed if at least one unexpected visitor doesn't pay the Boston contingent a call.

The Red Sox who start for Savannah Ga on Sunday afternoon look into the news today with the announcement that Jack Russell slender right-handed pitcher, has signed his contract

Now that Texas Jack has joined the fold the only stray sheep in George Stumpf, rookie outfielder who will come to terms before long you may rest assured

HENRI WHIRLS TO GREAT MAT CONQUEST

Jack Conway Gives Credit for Win to Bat Nelson

Hand those purple robes to Henri DeGlane, gallant Frenchman. He proved himself every inch a champion against Jim Browning. And Jack Conway's prediction won Jack insists that the event go to Butting Nelson whose advice he followed But once told Conway always to trail with the champion No one dared that nobody becomes even a marble champ unless he's got the drop on the rest of the gang.

Only a mighty mat king could have turned back the youthful American challenger. Browning wrestled well enough to defeat any man in the world with the exception of DeGlane The latter rates with Frank Gotch and the other great champions the wrestling game has known

DeGlane won the first fall in 34m. 25s with an aeroplane whirl and slam. Browning a spectacular top body scissors gave him the second toss in 19m. 21s. The third and deciding fall was won by DeGlane in 9m 41s

As DeGlane left the ring he received a wild ovation. The big crowd was quick to recognize It had witnessed the work of a master.

Browning doughty challenger, was soon widely acclaimed as he fought his way through his adversary to his dressing room

It was a hard, clean bout, jammed with thrills It was the best exhibition of orthodox wrestling witnessed in this city in several years.

There were no wild plunges through the ropes, no punching or kicking or any of the other type of rough stuff that goes with so many of the modern wrestling matches

The crowd had the color that goes with championship gatherings. The 12,000 persons who jammed the Arena came from all parts of New England, and from parts of Canada. The Canadian rooters were French or French-Canadian. They went frantic with delight when DeGlane scored his brilliant triumph.

As soon as the bout started, Browning started forcing the issue. He drove DeGlane back against the ropes, and tried to apply his famous body scissors

DeGlane Fools Foe to Gain First Fall

Browning then started using arm locks He fastened one arm lock on DeGlane's left arm which the latter was unsuccessful in trying to break in three attempts

DeGlane pulled himself back to

By BILL GRIMES

Two years ago, Cooper Smeaton became well fed up on refereeing and announced that at the conclusion of the season he would toss away his whistle.

Last year he tried ha hand at managing Philadelphia and then returned to the N. H. L as an official Now, he has resigned

Smeaton claims that the protest by the Bruins had nothing whatever to do with his resignation. He stated that officiating interferes with his business but the real reason was that he was not backed up by the league.

During his 20 years as official in the professional game, Cooper Smeaton has been put in many tough spots Time and again he was assigned to referee N. H. L. games in Montreal and regardless of the winner, he was the goat for the losing team and its sympathizers

A few years ago, the writer accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Smeaton out of the Forum and the names which were hurled at "Coop" were enough to cause the resignation of any self-respecting man. The fact that Smeaton was with his wife was no check on the language of the protesting fans.

Although Chris Speyer is round by boned by the fans at the Garden he is one of the finest characters in professional hockey Speyer takes his bumps and his penalties without a whimper and, regardless of what occurs on the ice, he always has perfect control of himself when he reaches the penalty box

Joe Cook put on his act for the Greater Boston All-Star hockey team last night at the Hotel Manger. The schoolboys were banquated by General Manager Dick Dunn of the Garden and "Cookie was the hit of the night

Joe Jerwa is deserving of another shot at the big league He is a useless worker and is trying to improve every angle of his game Joe will straighten himself out and as soon as he gets so he can keep his head when decisions are rendered which do not agree with his judgment.

Maury Roberts turned in one of his greatest games last night, despite the fact that New Haven was on the losing end. But for the sensational goal tending of the Somerville boy, the Cubs would have filled the net with pucks

The Cubs will leave for Springfield at 1 tomorrow afternoon and they will show in New Haven before they return home

I'm thrilled. I don't know what to say. It was gratifying to receive such a tremendous ovation from an American crowd following my victory over Jim Browning. I now feel that the public is convinced I didn't try to avoid the meeting with the challenger from Missouri.

SCHAAF READY TO CHOP KING OF CANEBRAKES

ERNIE IS 6-5 CHOICE OVER STRIBLING

We [illegible] money to the fans who saw Ernie Schaaf last to Max Schmeling at Yankee Stadium last summer, when he [illegible] Ernie Schaaf [illegible] bone today.

The most important bout, as battle of the season one remembers, [illegible] a big [illegible] champ, no other [illegible] Schaaf [illegible] Stribling [illegible] an opponent [illegible] Schaaf [illegible] Stribling [illegible] and [illegible] Schaaf [illegible] Stribling [illegible] Schaaf [illegible] Stribling [illegible] Schaaf will [illegible] which [illegible]

Schmeling Handed "Strib" Bad Beating

But Stribling is believed to be a much better conditioned fighter today than he was when he stepped into that Cleveland [illegible] mix.

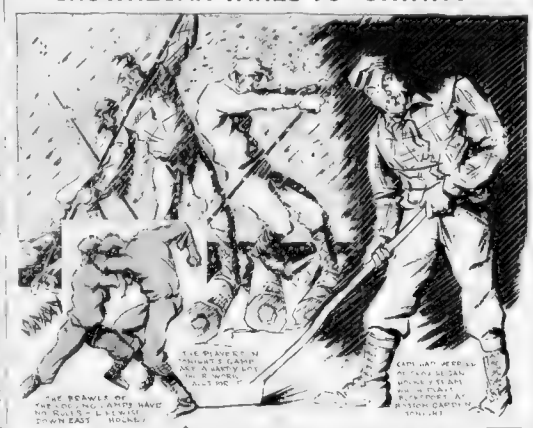
He will be outweighed 20 pounds tonight, scaling about 190 to Schaaf's 208. Schaaf is a 6 to 5 favorite.

Luminaries of the fistic world will be on hand for the battle Jack Dempsey, retired champ; Louisville where he defeated Frank Wine in an exhibition battle and where he received a splendid commission from the Governor, will be in a ringside seat. Mickey Walker will be near him. Jack Sharkey will be in Schaaf's corner.

My Sullivan, St. Paul sports Ben Jeby, New York, in the 10-round semi-windup. Al Fay, Pittsburgh and Tom Davenport, Little Rock meet tonight, and Clyde Chastian, Dallas light heavy, and Mickey Patrick, Chicago, meet in 8-round preliminaries.

Stadium officials have estimated the probable attendance at between 12,000 to 15,000.

SKOWHEGAN TAKES TO "SHINNY"



THE BRAWLERS WHO WILL CAMPS HAVE TO SKATE DOWN EAST HOCKEY

DOWN EAST ICE FINAL FRAY ON

Dad will doll up and Ma will put on her new red bonnet with the red roses on it and we'll hitch old Dobbin to the sleigh and hie for the Reiten Garden tonight where Skowhegan and Eliot-sport Point meet in the final game of the glorified shinny series they now call "Down East Hockey." All the fellers and gals will be there including the fiddlers and harmonica players and Erine Edwards, the barber shop tenor. You never see such gallivanting and goin' on.

If you haven't seen a Down East hockey scrimmage you hain't seed nothin'. It's got a shuleah enough to Donnybrook backed off the boards. There is more hash-ish of beans and caving of conks than in 19 hockey games. The basswoodmen from Skowhegan and Rucksport Point are all tuned up and rarin' to go for it means a shinny championship of the grand old State of Maine, b'gosh!

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

EDDIE STANTON stepped off the Twentieth Century from Chicago. He had Henry Firpo in tow. Also Eddie Stanton, Jr., four years old.

"When I was in Boston 10 or 12 years ago with Willie Green, I told you that some day I'd come back here with a great fighter," was Eddie's greeting. "I have him in the person of Firpo.

"This boy (he's just 24) licked Gorilla Jones in the trials of the National Boxing Association's middleweight tourney, but didn't get the duke. The referee ruled for Firpo, but the two judges voted for Jones.

"Dan Shade found that Firpo was the most promising middleweight in the country. I have never seen Leo Larivee, the youngster Firpo meets on Monday night, but if the Connecticut middleweight wins he will have to prove himself the greatest man of his weight in the world. That's how good Firpo is."

Stanton bowed out with the promise he'd drop in soon. Eddie, Jr., whispered to me that he's going after the flyweight title.

Mr. Boston

I'LL TUNE in on the Chicago Stadium tonight when Ernie Schaaf and two tremendous punches at Young Stribling. With the distance for the tussle only ten rounds, Schaaf has a tough fight on his hands. In a 15-round tussle, the Wrentham Wizard would go Stribling right into the ground. Over the 10-round route, Willie the Clutch has a chance to land some sneak punches and make a battle for the decision.

JACK SHARKEY will direct Schaaf's campaign. Sharkey licked Stribling in the Battle of the Palms just three years ago this month. Sharkey broke Stribling's heart in the fourth round. The Georgian scored with a terrific right hand punch to the jaw. Instead of backing away or holding, Sharkey opened fire with both hands to the body. Stribling didn't know what to make of it. He was in the habit of seeing fellows he nailed on the chin kiss the canvas.

SCHAAF ISN'T as good a boxer as Sharkey and will have to rely upon his aggressiveness and punch to win. Yet it is much the same position Paul Berlenbach was when he tackled Stribling in New York. Punch 'Em Paul didn't attempt to outbox Stribling. Instead he would rush from his corner at the opening of the round and send crushing left hooks to his opponent's body. These stopped Stribling cold in the fifth round.

YOU ARE GOING to get another look at Adolph Heuser, sensational German light heavyweight, at the Boston Garden on March 4. Heuser will oppose Rosy Rosales of Cleveland in the eight-round semifinal to the 10-round bout between Jackie Fields and Johnny Indrisano. Heuser has won his last four starts by knockouts. His most impressive victory was scored over George Manley of Denver, rated No. 2 in the light heavyweight list.

it still trying to break the arm lock. Suddenly he dropped under Browning with his free hand gripped the challenger lifted him on his shoulders gave him the aeroplane whirl and crashed him to the canvas for the first fall in 31m. 23s.

When the big fellows swept back into action, Browning was more careful in evading traps the Frenchman set for him. Jim punished the champion with arm locks. He finally worked him into position for his top body scissors. The third attempt pinned DeGlane's shoulders in 19m. 21s.

The champion charged the challenger, was under him before he got his bearings, scored with an inside crotch hold, lifted Jim in the air, spun him with the aeroplane whirl, and sent him down for the winning fall in 9m. 41s.

Pat McKay tossed Mike Miller in 6m. 50s. with an inside crotch hold, body lift and slam. Charley Hanson and Peter Flanigan went 10m. to a draw. Casey Kazanjian, a fine mat prospect, used a hammer throw to knock off Boris Demetroff in 8m. 5s.

Andy Brown and Marcus West [illegible] tied 20m. on even terms. Rudy Ladzia disposed of Pat O'Hara in 6m. 58s. with an inside crotch hold, body lift and slam. Raoul Simon of France and Martin Piestina engaged in a 5m. draw. John Peddemore and Bud Weaver also went 5m. on even terms.

FULLER FIGHTS MILLER IN N. Y.

New York, Feb. 28—Sammy Fuller, Boston lightweight who has a win to his credit over Tom Canzoneri, will trade punches with Ray Miller in a ten-round bout at the New York Garden tonight.

If Fuller wins he will get a shot at Canzoneri, it is [illegible]

Dan Carroll and Harry Kelly will meet Fuller in his bout tonight. Sammy according to [illegible] weighs 135 pounds and is in the best of condition.

Art on Best Behavior Since 1930 Episode

This is the 17th of a series of highlights in the career of Arthur the Great Shires, colorful new first baseman of the Braves, written by Joe Cashman, baseball expert of the Boston Evening American. Other installments will follow daily. Watch for them!

By JOE CASHMAN

Since his marriage, Art Shires has been in trouble only once.

Late in 1930, he made a round of the Hollywood cabarets one night and ended up by entering a police station to inform the desk sergeant what the films had gained by his entrance to the motion picture field.

He was told to go home.

"Try and put me out," was his reply, according to the police.

At any rate, no attempt was made to eject him. Instead, he was booked and tossed into a cell. He later was fined $10 on a drunk [illegible] charge.

The authorities also alleged that a pair of brass knuckles were found on his person. The district attorney refused to press that charge because Art had no criminal record.

All this happened on Dec. 30.

On New Year's Eve, the following night, Art announced:

"No more promiscuous talking for me. I knew I talked a lot but I never thought I'd talk myself into this. I went to the station to report a theft of $50. I talked myself into being arrested. From now on I am going to be and want to be known as 'Silent Arthur.'"

The Great One has lived up to that New Year's resolution very well.

He signed with Milwaukee without a murmur, reported in fine condition, and stayed in the best of shape, lived up to all the rules, behaved like a gentleman, and followed closely the straight and narrow throughout the 1931 campaign.

Subject to the draft, he escaped when the Reds claimed Catcher Clyde Manion from the Brewers and the Braves lost no time in purchasing him for $10,000 in cash and Catcher Al Bool.

In the hope that he might get a chance to land him, Manager Bill McKechnie took a few days off last fall to watch "Whataman" in action.

Here is what the Pirate pilot said about the return of Shires:

"Shires is a great ball player now. He can murder any kind of pitching, his fielding leaves little to be desired, his behavior is perfect, but I am not going to the field and no player could try harder day in and day out to win. He eats, drinks and sleeps baseball and is interested in little else. I would have a pretty good club if I could get him."

Time will tell how good Boss Bill as a prognosticator [illegible] Tomorrow's chapter will bring Shires' career up to date.

Malcewicz Quits to Gus Sonnenberg

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 28 (AP)—Wrestling went matterhorn today. The match started at 10:23 o'clock at night and after more than two hours of sitting and tugging a battered and bleeding Gus Sonnenberg, Providence, R. I., won over the equally battered Joe Malcewicz, Utica, N. Y., to take the match, billed for two out of three falls.

Malcewicz reluctantly threw in the towel, a token of defeat. The wrestlers had to have a 15-minute rest period before the match was completed. The official time for the bout was two hours, 34 minutes.

Gehrig Wounded by Japs, He Reports

New York, Feb. 28 (INS)—Lou Gehrig, first baseman of the New York Yankees, revealed today that his left hand had been painfully injured last fall when he was touring the Orient with other big league stars. A Japanese hurler put him with a pitched ball.

St. Joe's Show Gives 160-Pounders Work

Middleweights will also have their inning at the St. Joe's amateur boxing show at Mechanics Building tomorrow night. The 160-pounders are able to punch while they don't carry so much poundage that they are unable to step around in lively style.

There will also be bouts at 112, 126, 135, and 147 pounds as well as in the [illegible]

BRUINS SINK, CUBS RISE IN ICE GRIND

By BILL GRIMES

Although the Bruins came from behind to tie the New York Rangers in Gotham, the last ground in the N. H. L. standing for the Detroit Falcons slipped a 5 to 3 defeat over on the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Maple Leafs have been encountering some tough sledding of late, losing to the Bruins, Maroons and Falcons but it is doubtful the latest upset disturbed Connie Smythe to any great extent.

In defeating Toronto the Falcons not only scored their second road victory of the season but threw one more point away from the Bruins which was sufficient solace for Connie Smythe who would do nothing better than to see the Rossmen eliminated from the playoffs.

It is a well known fact that the other N. H. L. clubs would prefer to have Detroit in the playoffs rather than the Bruins. The Bruins are not a popular outfit with the other teams and on top of that they are feared more than the Falcons.

From now on, the clubs assured of playoff positions will do considerable "jockeying" to place themselves and displace others. They have already experienced one upset, for the Maroons, who are no more popular than the Bruins, appear to have the edge over the New York Americans for third place in the International Division.

If the other clubs had their way, neither the Bruins nor the Maroons would contest for the Stanley cup. The Bruins and the Maroons can play rugged hockey when sufficiently riled and during a money series they would make trouble for any of their opponents.

The Bruins have two more tough games in a row, for they leave tonight from New York for Montreal, where they meet the Flying Frenchmen tomorrow night in the Forum, and return here Tuesday, again to tackle Les Canadiens.

JAPANESE VOTE ON MORAL ISSUE DURING WAR

By GILBERT SELDES

THE JAPANESE ARE a light-hearted people, fond of expansion and unofficial wars, brave in battle, and suffering from politics only because Commodore Perry (U. S. N.) introduced to them the comforts of modern civilization.

GILBERT SELDES

Yet even in politics the Japanese have not foreswora their Oriental traditions; the friends of China will tell you, with adequate proof, that the Japanese have drawn on China for the best of their literature and social customs, and it is known that to write in Chinese characters was, until recently, the mark of a civilized Japanese.

The Election

It is, no doubt, the Chinese influence which causes the Japanese to go into an election at this time on an issue of "moral depravity." Do not too hastily assume that they are discussing the absorption of Manchuria and their relations to the League. These are practical concerns. The parties struggling for control of Japan are appealing to voters on a more abstract issue. It is: Should the present government have resigned when an attempt was made on the life of the Emperor? A secondary issue is whether the gold standard should have been abandoned when it was—a financial problem thus being added to an ethical one. Both are abstract, and the voter, if wise, will retire to his hearthstone, or the Japanese equivalent, sip a sup of sake, and meditate on the finer points of conduct and human life.

A Lesson for Us

Those who feel that American politics lacks reality, that there is little to choose between the two great parties, will see many advantages in the Japanese system. If our President had chosen sides, we might now go into conventions and polling places on the issue between Mrs. Gann and Mrs. Longworth. The Democrats might have accused Mr. Hoover of prejudicing the future of the United States by giving Premier Laval the second best bedroom at the White House, or condemned him for not having resigned when his friend, prosperity, failed to show up at the end of her sixty-day rendezvous. The manners of Vice-President Curtis, the clothes worn by former Secretary Mellon and the grammar of a number of Senators might all be issues in the campaign.

As it is, we have to choose between international arguments in which we are not interested and domestic policies which we do not understand. The Oriental custom is superior. We are all capable of judging moral issues.

Short Dream

A correspondent asks me to interpret the following, which strikes me as a lucid summary of our national complications, the exact meaning of the details I leave to superior Freudians. It is called "Vision or Dream,"

"It came to me into sleep. And I am unable to distinguish either it was dream or vision.
"Place: Union Square, New York.
"George Washington was running in south direction, and from the center of circle on Union Square, Abraham Lincoln, stretching his right arm, prayed:
"George, where are you going? Returne! My poor native land need you.
"To Capitol," answered Washington. "I am going depricate to keep out from Liga of Nations, from any war, stop the smgratism, legalize all habitants of U. S. and rid out of Prohibition.
"Tardiness in moving of Statue, and Lafayet, confronting George Washington, lifted both hands and smeared his face . . .
"Angery George Washington by the steps, ready to descend, monument of horse without knight, grieving Abraham Lincoln on the center circle, and, for behand him, empty pedestal . . . Lafayet turned towards Washington with face covered by hands . . . All that manifested very depressive atmosphere of unrecognasable Union Square."

The more you think of it, the more masterly it appears. It resembles a lot of pipe dreams which are offered as economic analyses and probably symbolizes the course of America for the next 50 years.

Washington Resists

The actual debunkers of George Washington were few in number; the atmosphere of debunking was almost universal. And the bicentenary of Washington's birth, which is being celebrated for the better part of a year, is a natural occasion not for weighing his merits, but for assessing the work of his detractors.

I think that, in the themselves, the debunkers have done a great service; they have proved that the truth about a great man is more important than any myth about him. The work they set out to do and the attitude they took on occasion have been failures. It can see why they wanted to shame the sanctimonious by reminding us that Washington had no objection to wine and cards; only they did not need to give so strongly the impression that they were better strategists and better statesmen than their subject.

Trivial Mythology

Mr. Rupert Hughes has listed the myths: the cherry tree, of course, the prayer in the snow, the cursing of Lee at Monmouth, and many others. The point is that the myths were pointless, they are all insignificant and trivial. Mr. Hughes does not think otherwise, he cares deeply for Washington's reputation.

We have grown a little tired of hearing that the Liberty Bell did not ring on the Fourth of July, 1776, because we have been bored by the people who think the destruction of myths will destroy the real things which the myths represent. The total contribution of the debunkers seems to be the important fact that Captain Kidd was not a pirate. And so small boy we [illegible] to believe that!

RADIO RESOURCEFULNESS

Quick Thinking Necessary Often

By N. F. T.

Broadcasting studio staff duty does one thing for ladies and gentlemen choosing to follow the work. It affords opportunity no end for resourcefulness.

Two recent examples are cited. Reception desk hostess Helen Fox, who greets guests with a gladsome smile and cordial countenance at Columbia's big sound acnetums in New York, furnishes the first instance. Said lovely lady has two phones on her desk. More often than not she answers both or neither as the same time. One night last week she had a phone in each hand and a [illegible] for fifteen minutes. Said [illegible] program just [illegible] was marvelous." Through the other came an opinion: "I think the half hour I've been listening to was terrible." Lightning flashed through her brain in bright ideo form. Indulging no hesitation she answered both thusly: "Yes, I think so, too. We certainly appreciate your calling."

TO THE RESCUE!

After which comes another sort of alertness. An awkward old pastel refused to fire when a shot was needed during certain dramatic doings not long ago. An embarrassing situation, no mistake. One enterprising announcer rushed up and shouted "Bang" into the microphone. His quick thinking didn't help the unemployment situation, however.

Radio played a big part in the colorful Paramount Theater opening on Washington st. last night. Linus Travers officiated at the WAAB apparatus and things moved with precision through an entire half hour between 8 and 8.30 p. m.

Joan Lowell, lady of letters, will have some inside information about how she secures much of her material. Lew Conrad is to be heard in a solo and as guest conductor of Hy Fine's Orchestra. Bally Payne also has a song or two with which to help make the stellar program stand out. Complete details tomorrow.

Marry-Go-Round

WARMED-OVER MARRIAGES ARE FASCINATING

—By HELEN ROWLAND—

WHY DOES the world hold up its hands (and laugh behind them) when ever a screen actress invites her ex husband to lunch? Or when a society woman has been seen dining with the man she divorced last spring?

* * *

It appears to be more scandalous to be caught chatting with your "used" husband than driving a "used" car, these days. Yet, why cannot a woman enjoy a lamb chop and a French-fried potatoes with a man with whom she would not care to spend her whole life?

* * *

But that's the catch! You simply can't trust these ex-husbands and ex-wives together. There's too much remarrying going on all about. Let a couple of people, who have gotten up in court and called each other all sorts of terrible names, get alone together at a lunch-table—and the first thing you know they are off to Bermuda on a second honeymoon.

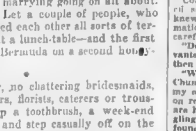
* * *

No gaudily staged wedding, no chattering bridesmaids, practical jokers, weeping mothers, florists, caterers or trousseau fittings. You just pick up a toothbrush, a week-end togs and a pair of comfy soules and step casually off on the pair of the moment to some happy old haunt or some new scene, where you can be alone together, and agree what fools you were ever to part.

* * *

She has no notions about "reforming a man." She knows it can't be done. And most of her tender sensibilities and sore spots have become comfortably calloused, so that she can devote herself to something besides introspection and "feeling sorry for herself."

* * *



Also, most of a man's ideas about "making over a wife" have been revised, and his expectations of feminine perfection and wifely submission have completely evaporated. He is completely "humanized."

* * *

So, when I read of these famous ex-wifes and ex-husbands meeting on the sly, it gives me a vicarious thrill. Because I suspect that they are facing a second honeymoon. Which can be far sweeter and more glamorous than a first honeymoon. For then, at least, you know your heart and know each OTHER—and love is no guessing-game or long shot.

All Danger of Parrot Fever Is Ended

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

DURING the year there have been no epidemics of "psittacosis," or "parrot fever." However, occasional cases are still reported and many persons hesitate to purchase parrots as pets.

Dr. Copeland.

For a pet who love birds, this problem is a serious one. In order to reassure them, I would say that there is much unnecessary alarm concerning this matter.

The disease is not a new one. The last outbreak was the most severe ever recorded, but it is believed that such an epidemic will never occur again. Definite steps have been taken toward the prevention and spread of this disease.

Humans who have been infected are taken ill from six to fifteen days after exposure. The early symptoms closely resemble the onset of a severe cold or influenas. There may be violent headache, nausea and fever.

According to the law, these birds now must be examined before they are shipped to us, and again before they are landed.

Wife Was Fat No Longer Attractive Lost Husband's Love

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper of April 4 in connection with a divorce trial that has attracted wide attention.

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do.

If you are fat how would you like to look it and at the same time gain in physical charm and acquire a clean, clear skin and eyes that sparkle with buoyant health?

And gain in energy and activity?

Why, it's the ambition of millions of men and women to do that. Think of what it would fat! Feel a glow of fine water every morning! Look in the mirror and see your face and body losing the ugly fat and taking on the firm, graceful lines of youth! Know you look the picture of health! Have a keen appetite for delicious meals—and eat them without fear of gaining a pound! Be admired by your friends! Be envied by those who are now fat! Be the center of attraction wherever you go! Be popular! Be successful! Be loved!

It's easy to do it! Simply eat a delicious cereal for breakfast every morning for a few weeks. Enjoy delicious luncheons and dinners, but eat sparingly of fattening foods. Then you will lose fat, but will not lose health, strength or energy. On the contrary, you will be surprised at the new health and vitality you will enjoy.

Let the fat go anywhere—your health comes first and remember this—if you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

book and forgot everything else. And first thing I knew Lola came home with a horde of policemen."

"Do you like Christine?"

"Yes—why not—but she is a nuisance. I mean can be inkind about Christine—but I do get tired of having her around here."

"Ever tell Lola that?"

"Oh, yes. But she seemed to want to keep her right here. I think they were planning some kind of business together."

Colt's pose at my skipping pencil seemed positively grateful. He knew that every nugget of information he unearthed was being carefully stored for future study.

"Do you consider all your servants above suspicion?" Dougherty then asked.

"We have only two, Eunice and Ching and both are penitentials in my opinion. My daughter insisted on retaining them. I am sure they are harmless. There was some giggling among the girls when they found some love poems addressed to Lola and Christine."

"Written by Chung?"

"Yes—it was all passed over as a joke."

"By the way—Christine's escort this evening was Guy Everett. You mean the same?"

"Yes."

"Yes."

"At what hour?"

"About nine-thirty. They were going to the Lion's Paw."

"Absolutely."

"Yes, at the Axton Club."

At a glance from Colt, I went to the telephone. While he went on, questioning Mrs. Carewe, I was calling the Axton Club, which was just around the corner. The operator there informed me that Mr. Guy Everett was not in. I left word to have him telephone Lola Carewe immediately he returned.

"Can you suggest any reason why anyone should want to kill Lola?" he asked.

"Why not?"

"Why did Lola quarrel with Basil?"

This swift, jabbing thrust produced an electrifying effect upon the aged woman. Her eyes lighted up. Her mouth opened wide. Her hands clapped together. Unsteadily she rose to her feet.

"Basil!" she croaked. "What do you know about Basil?"

In truth, Colt's question had surprised me too. I had dismissed from my mind the picture of that lanching boy on Lola's dressingtable. But Thatcher Cold never forgets anything that seems significant.

"What good will it do, Mrs. Carewe, to hide anything? We are bound to get the facts sooner or later."

"Basil is dead and that's all there is to it."

Mrs. Carewe closed her eyes.

"You are afraid of Basil?"

Girl Quits Her Prodigal Boy

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For several months I've been going around with a man in the same office as myself. He occupies an official position and I am a typist. Evidently he didn't find me hard on the eyes, because he took me around with him and I supposed myself engaged to him. The other night we went to dinner at a place where you can get drinks—we had a cocktail, that's all, but some of the other guests had more and got rowdy. The boy friend said we would leave, but made the astonishing remark: "I'd shoot a man who brought my sister here." That made me mad, because he had taken me there, and I'm an entirely decent and self-respecting girl.

EVELYN.

Dear Evelyn I wish more girls had your spunk, my dear Evelyn. There'd be fewer misunderstandings about these lightweight proposals. It was thoughtless, tactless, even a bit cruel for a man to tell you he had taken you where he wouldn't have taken his sister, and I think you were quite right to resent it. Remember, no man can ever find the complete and absolute truth; but search for it with all you have. It is the only thing really worth the search.

DARE TO LIVE A REBELLIOUS LIFE.

Dare to question, doubt and defy. Dare to be discontented. Dare to be different. Dare to be inconsistent. People will laugh at you and turn against you. People will say you don't know your own mind, and that you're not reliable. Let them say it!

Go on living! Go on reaching for stars and kicking down dung piles. You may make a fool of yourself, but you will have lived! And that is the greatest thing then can happen to you. It is the only reason for being born. If you ar nt going to do anything with life after you get it, why get it?

DARE TO LIVE A LOVING LIFE.

Love is the greatest risk of all. Love will make you take greater chances, force upon you harder sacrifices, cost you deeper suffering than any other experience. If you dare to ...e the whole way with love, it will break your heart; but a heart never comes into its maturity until it is broken. Nor can you possibly know what life is all about until you have loved without stint—without counting or regretting the cost.

"He who would save his life must lose it!"

If you love, you will really lose your life—your small, safe, serene individual life—but you will gain a new and infinitely larger, lovelier life.

DARE TO LIVE! DARE TO LOVE!

Dare to Live a Full Life as It Comes to You

By ELSIE ROBINSON

DARE TO LIVE!

Life—real life—is not an accumulation of days and nights; of certain stereotyped occurrences which will happen to you automatically, if you just stick around.

Life is much more than that. It is a tremendous experience, into which you may enter if you have the courage; but you will never know that experience unless you do have the courage.

Actually, multitudes pass through life without ever living. There they are, whirling along in time with millions of other people, yet always feeling "out of it." They are out of it because they never came into it. It is their own fault. They have never dared to live.

DARE TO LIVE A FULL LIFE.

Live ALL of life, as it comes. That does not mean that you must do everything everyone else does; nor does it mean that you should do anything that decent, healthy-minded persons would not do; but it does mean that you should seize upon every opportunity which will make your life stronger, wiser and more abundant, even though it raises Cain with your status quo.

Life offers every human being countless opportunities to enlarge his experience, only many of us do not recognize them as opportunities. Opportunities do not always come wearing til cigar wrappers. Sometimes they come wrapped in crepe.

But take them as they come and learn from them, regardless of their wrapping. Don't demand pretty packages. Don't defer living until the "right chance comes." Don't haggle and try to strike bargains. Dare to live ALL of life.

DARE TO LIVE A FREE LIFE.

Dare to think your own thoughts without trumming. Dare to face your own consequences and consume your own smoke. Do not try to make anyone else responsible for either your happiness or your misery. Stand on your own hind legs. Be free, and rejoice in the strength and dign..y which comes with freedom, but be willing, also, to endure its awful loneliness.

DARE TO LIVE AN HONEST LIFE.

Dare to face the truth about all things, particularly the difficult and disconcerting truth about yourself. Dare to defy the most venerable tradition and sacrifice the most cherished bit of sentimentality if, thereby, you can discover a greater truth.

Making Our Hot Cross Buns

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.

CAPACITY AUDIENCES even on cold and stormy days make us feel that Greater Boston housewives are finding the lessons in the Martha Lee Cooking School of real interest and value. And aren't we proud of our Brides' Cooking Classes! Class on Tuesday evenings!

Eight "seasonable specialties" were prepared in our classes this week, including hot cross buns, crab and rice ring, flounder fillets with lobster and mushroom filling, California chicken pie (tuna) lettuce salad with Roquefort dressing date and cherry roll, maid-of-the-mist pie and orange sponge cake.

HOT CROSS BUNS

3 tbsps. shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 yeast cake
2 cups flour
3 eggs, beaten
½ cup currants

Add shortening, sugar and salt to milk. Cool until lukewarm, add yeast flour and eggs, well beaten. When thoroughly mixed add raisins, cover and let rise over night. In the morning shape into large biscuits, place in oiled muffin tins, let rise, brush over with beaten eggs and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 minutes. Cool and mark cross with frosting. The cross may be scored with a scissors before baking if desired.

FLOUNDER RINGS

Select fillets of flounder nine inches or more long. Wipe and season with salt, pepper and lemon juice. Fit the fillets around the inside of individual (4 inch) muffin rings which have been well buttered and placed on a buttered baking sheet. Have the fillets overlap an inch if not more. If these do not overlap sufficiently, the fillets will break, the juice fall out, and the result be mussy. In the center space, place the following mixture, heaping it well and having as much as possible of the bright red claw meat show on top.

Bake in a moderate oven until the fish is thoroughly cooked. It will take about 15 minutes. With a large server remove carefully to platter and garnish with sprigs of parsley and tips of lobster claws.

Lobster and Mushroom Filling

Remove the meat from a 1½ or a 2 pound lobster. There should be 1½ cups of meat cut in dice. Remove and peel the caps from ½ lb of mushrooms, break in small pieces and fry in 3 tbsps. of butter. Add 2 tbsps. of flour, ½ cup of cream, and the lobster meat. Season with salt and cayenne.

The Beauty Box

SELECT a hairbrush with bristles placed in groups. It gets to the scalp, frictions it, and is easily kept clean.

Part of the day's beauty schedule is the downing of six glasses of water. Fifteen minutes of complete relaxation in the middle of the afternoon will ward off that five-o'clock-tis that seizes many of the busy gals. Milk with meals furnishes calcium which helps to preserve the teeth and which keeps finger nails from going dry and brittle.

Daily True Story

Change of Heart

THE TROUBLE began at Gardner Field when Ruth Van [illegible] engaged one of the new [illegible]

She had proved herself as a Flier and determined to win some of the glories of the air [illegible] was apparent [illegible] up her mind [illegible] Lieut. Grant [illegible] before Ruth's appearance had seemed to belong to Eva Carter. Eva, too, had won her wings and a few prizes that had enabled her to keep going in the aerial game.

The fourth factor in the [illegible] was [illegible] assistant manager of the field, Betts [illegible] of Ruth Van Velt. Betts himself had [illegible] —and her money—if he could [illegible]

When Eva saw Joe lured away she hid her grief and went on playing the game of life with a smile that cloaked the ache in her heart. If Joe had decided that he didn't want her—why, that was that, but Betts raged inwardly and made up his mind if there was any way to cheat Joe of the heiress prize he would take it.

There came a stormy morning when all the parties in this love [illegible] happened to be at [illegible] ner Field. Joe, despite dangerous and discouraging weather, had arrived determined to fly on a pressing errand to a mid-Western city. He was already circling the field when Ruth stepped out of her expensive car at the office building.

HE COULDN'T WAIT.

Eva had arrived earlier and was looking over her plane, which has been acting badly and needed overhauling.

Ruth had hastened over to the hangar where Joe's machine had been housed. She found Betts standing thoughtfully in the open doorway, while one of the mechanics dabbled across the field to work on another plane.

"Was that Joe taking off?" asked Ruth imperiously as she reached Betts. He nodded.

"Didn't you tell him that I had phoned—that I wanted to see him?" she demanded.

"Said he couldn't wait, answered Betts absently. And he smiled as he looked toward the west, where Joe had disappeared in the mist.

"How about me taking you out to dinner tonight?" Betts asked. "You owe me a date, Ruth. I've had that big plane of yours put in fine shape."

"That's your business," she replied coldly. "And, as for the dinner, thanks, but I've another engagement."

With their backs toward her neither of them noticed Eva coming down the field at a brisk walk. She was within earshot when the next words were spoken. Once more Betts had raised toward the west.

"Well," he drawled, "maybe I won't get more another chance to say yes or no to an invitation from her."

"But what in you mean by that?" demanded Ruth. "It sounds ominous. What's your object in [illegible]

"Listen," interrupted Betts snappily, "you needn't entertain any suspicion concerning me. I tell you I tried to warn him, but was ordered to mind my own business. Fact is there are some strains in that ship of his that are weak expensive in a gale.

A little young figure sprang be-

[illegible] fore [illegible] "I heard what you [illegible] a load. You [illegible] heard before. You're [illegible] to get [illegible] to go after him—[illegible] him!"

GO AFTER HIM

Eva turned on Ruth, white to the lips. "You've got three good ships. It's up to you to go after Joe—now. There isn't a man left in the place who could do it. Are you going?"

It was Ruth's turn to whiten. She clenched her hands nervously. [illegible] never flown in weather like this, [illegible] about blind flying. I'd only crash myself. I would if—"

Ruth's prize plane was wheeled out. Eva [illegible] the motor would not [illegible] Without a further word [illegible] Betts. Betts, she took [illegible] down the field, and the gun swooped into the air.

Joe bucked the bad weather for three-quarters of an hour before he caught a glimpse of the big ship that loomed up beside and slightly above him. He recognized Ruth's plane from the red and silver markings and wondered what it was all about. Then he saw something that amazed him. The pilot was dangling a long scarf over the side of the ship and pulling it [illegible] three times—Every [illegible] signal for a landing when they used to team-flight together. Something must be wrong. He had agreed that meant "come down." But he couldn't understand at all. Two minutes later they were over Plainville Field. Joe volplaned, [illegible] carefully in the gusty blasts.

SUFFERED FOR FORTY YEARS

Then One Lucky Day She Used Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

"For about forty years I had been praying for a lasting remedy for constipation and its attending evils. To make it short, I ate nothing but ALL-BRAN and a little bruth. Since that time (about ten years ago) I have not taken any medicine. Have been well and extremely free from constipation."—Mrs. I. H. Kendig, R. F. D. No. 2, Lancaster, Penna.

Constipation is caused by lack of two things in the diet: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines. Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. Laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN furnishes both. ALL-BRAN also furnishes iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears out the wastes.

Isn't it much pleasanter to enjoy ALL-BRAN than to risk taking pills and drugs—so often harmful?

Two tablespoonfuls daily will overcome most types of constipation. If you have intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve as a cereal, or use in cooking. It is not habit-forming. Recipes on the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BOOM-TIME HOME COST 20 CENTS ON DOLLAR

By B. C. FORBES

"I'm very glad," said the head of a nationally known corporation, "that I bought quite a bit of land and built a large home during the boom. I figure it cost me less than 20 cents on the dollar."

"How?" I asked

"If I hadn't put the money into land and buildings, I have no doubt I would have left it invested in common stocks. These common stocks are now worth not more than 20 per cent of what I got for them when I sold them. My real estate hasn't gone down anything like that amount. So I'm quite happy that I did what I did."

Financial News, Stocks, Bonds and Comment

STATE ST. Hears:

That the desultory action of the stock list is trying the patience of traders. As a result, even the most rabid common share enthusiasts are swinging around to the belief that bonds and bank stocks are going to hold the spotlight. While this is happening it is logical to expect a major period of accumulation in the stock department In and out traders will continue to scalp short profits by buying the tips and selling the moderate rallies.

Bonds and Banks

Aside all the moves inspired by Washington to date have had one definite aim. Namely to strengthen the position of both banks and other active [illegible] The result are receiving the attention Bonds are acting wonderfully since the debacle began and should do even better in the next few months, in the opinion of responsible observers. With [illegible] the principal investment outlet of banks, the latter find their position automatically strengthened. Not content with this, constructive efforts have been made to improve the earning faculties of banking institution.

Naturally, all this serves to call the attention of astute investors to the bargains existing in the bond and bank share departments. The most profitable business in the world has long been the handling of money. With shackles cleared away it is bound to regain its old prominence because the average business has cleared up the ladder of turmoil. Conservative leaders of industry and banking are once more energizing their funds in the bond and bank shares and should do their intimates to follow suit.

R. J. Reynolds

Among the many mediums suitable for long term investment is the 3-per-cent Liberty [illegible] not expected to forge ahead of the securities spoken of above. It should [illegible] range [illegible] prices can be profitably instituted [illegible] the anticipated period of inflation. Adequately adjusted to increased capitalization, have increased every year since 1926. For 1931 the [illegible] were exceeded, yet the financial strength of the company has shown an improvement in which year also proved exceptional for the past 10 years. At present current assets are about 3½ times current liabilities.

The present $5 dividend is thought to be safe and quite on an active return at current levels. The investor finds reasonable assurance that the immediate future of the business ahead in pursuing the attitude of the company toward its own stock. In 1929 over $8,000,000 of treasury funds was employed in the purchase of the stock as an investment.

Boardroom Briefs

Recent review of wheat conditions given here indicated a smaller crop. Those thoughts find substance in an official statement indicating the domestic crop would be 18 to 20 per cent smaller... The bond market has been higher for 10 consecutive sessions while other listed departments turned in irregular performances...Of the New York [illegible] shares, manufactured under the Gibson Management and rumored Morgan influence, is well liked...Telephone, with a regular dividend declaration, is once more the prime favorite of small investors...

Now that bankers are resuming easier they should gradually extend bond and stock purchases automatically furnish business with the chance to obtain credit through the flotation of new senior obligations as an improved and more confident market.

Dividends

Public Service Co. of New Hampshire subsidiary of New England Public Service Co., and part of Middle West Utilities System, declared regular quarterly dividends of $1.50 per share on the $6 dividend series preferred stock and 75c a share on the $5 dividend series preferred stock, both payable May 2 to stock of record March 21.

Directors of Boston Elevated Railway declared a dividend of $2.50 per share on the preferred stock, payable February 29, and a dividend of $1.25 per share on the common stock, payable March 31 to stock of record March 21.

An initial dividend of 62½ cents was declared by National Distilleries Products Corp. on the new $2.50 cumulative preferred stock. Dividend is payable April 1 to stock of record March 22.

Directors of General Railway Signal Corp. declared a dividend of 75 cents on the common, payable April 1 to stock of record March 20. Previously $1.25 quarterly was paid. This places the issue on a $3 annual basis against $5 heretofore.

Parke, Davis & Co. declared extra dividend of 10 cents and regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents, both payable March 31.

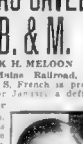
$2,500,000 IS SEEN AS SAVED FOR B. & M.

By FRANK H. MELOON

Boston & Maine Railroad, of which Edward S. French is president, calls for January, a deficit of $121,386, after fixed charges. This compares with net income of $135,850 in January, 1931. The month showed a decline in receipts of $1,[illegible] which $621,[illegible] 672 or 29.7 per cent in freight and $200,[illegible] or 28.7 per cent in passenger revenues. Further reduction is shown in operating expenses amounting to $2,[illegible] per month, as compared with January, last year.



Edward S. French

* * *

The 10 per cent reduction is effective February 1 and therefore is not reflected in January results. Nevertheless this will amount to approximately $2,500,000 per year on the Boston & Maine.

* * *

The wage-cutting, which applies to the roads was made as a last following refusal of the Interstate Commerce Commission to allow the experiment of a rate increase sought by the carriers. Wage-cutting does not add to railroad revenues any more than it does that of other corporations.

* * *

Railroad bondholders will find special cheer in the announcement of Vice-President Woodson of the Railroad Credit Corp. that there will be no default in bond interest due March 1. This is particularly reassuring to holders of St. Louis-San Francisco, New York, Chicago & St. Louis and Missouri Pacific bonds. On March 1 interest is due on St. Louis-San Francisco consolidated mortgage series A 4½s of 1978, of which $10,000 are outstanding. Frisco has had applications for funds before both Railroad Finance and Reconstruction Finance Corp.

* * *

Interest also is due on Nickel Plate Series C 4½s, of which $50,[illegible] are outstanding.

Over $70,000,000 was expended during the year on new plants and equipment. Since its organization in 1884 the company has put back enormous sums into property. The approximate range in recent years has been: 1931, $7-109; 1930, 78-136; 1929, 80-[illegible]. There should be no fears as to the $4 dividend basis. Present price of around 60 would indicate the possibility any of adverse developments such as taxation or congressional investigation of utilities. The yield of 6.66 per cent is attractive.

It does not take Great Britain long to protect her industries once she gets started. Witness in evidence the British tariff of 10 per cent on copper, which will adversely affect U. S. and South American producers. Reduction in the price of copper here to 6 cents a pound was announced this week. Merely while a slow struggle is under way in Washington to secure a protective tariff on copper here.

U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, who is one of the leaders in the efforts to protect American copper interests, writes: "My dear Mr. Meloon:

"The outlook for a copper tariff is highly problematical. I think it depends upon whether the administrative section of the tariff law can be amended to provide for flexibility in connection with the 'free list' along some such lines as is suggested in my pending substitute for the House tariff bill. There seems to be no immediate prospect of successfully invoking the 'forced labor' ban on African copper.

"I share all of your interest in obtaining adequate copper protection because I feel that without it our domestic copper industry is all but doomed."

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

FEDERAL Reserve's lowering of the New York rediscount rate had no pronounced effect on the stock trading in Wall Street today. Some observers declared it was a surprise, because it had been predicted before the close yesterday. They did not know, apparently, that it had also been predicted before the close a week ago.

Woolworth's New Sales Policy

The new departure for Woolworth, recently announced whereby the company will retire merchandise to sell at high prices, should bring increased competition for the organizations which have been active in this field right along. In some trade circles it is pointed out that this action by Woolworth cannot tap new sources of consumption and must mean therefore that Lord will be keener rivalry for business in the 20-cent products than heretofore.

Accumulation in Silver Metal

Accumulation has been reported in silver metal futures and in part the buying has been credited to interests who keep informed on the silver situation of late. Also in the past few days a number of the speculators who often have been active in the stock markets have taken an interest in the silver metal market, buying some of the future delivery in anticipation of higher prices later in the year. As the case, there has been no confirmed rumors of plans for an international conference on the silver situation.

Lambert Dividend Viewed as Uncertain

That there is considerable uncertainty regarding the maintenance of the current $3 a share annual dividend rate on Lambert is indicated by the low price of the stock and the extraordinary yield at the current levels. Interests who have maintained a long position in the stock which was accumulated not much above present levels point out that a good slash in the distribution would still leave the stock with an attractive yield. Many rumors have been circulated as to what is likely to be done with the dividend, but nothing has come from responsible quarters on the matter. Action of the directors will be governed by earnings for the first quarter of this year and outlook for the immediate future.

Gold Dust's Dividend Prospect

Gold Dust is another stock on which Wall st. is looking for a dividend revision in the dividend. The talk has increased since publication of 1931 report, showing net $3.73 a share on the common, against $3.51 in 1930. Directors meet for dividend action next month. The current rate of distribution is $2.50 a share and the stock is selling only a few points above its low, indicating the confidence of many that a cut will be ordered. Conservatism of the management is likely to be a dominant factor in the dividend action. While nothing official has come out on the matter, the expectations in the financial district are that a rate of $1.50 or $1.60 would be in line with earnings

Market Discounting Poor First Quarter

Disposition prevails in some market circles to regard current price fluctuations as discounting in some measure anticipated unfavorable first quarter earning statements. Half of the initial three months period has elapsed without any perceptible change from the unfavorable industrial condition existing at the end of 1931. As a matter of fact activities in practically all lines have dwindled further to the lowest levels since the deflation started.

Estimates Are Given on Market Leaders

Some idea of the probable first quarter coming share results may be gained from estimates now being made on the basis of reported actual operations since the first of January. These and earn 60 cents a share for du Pont, slightly less than 80 cents for Union Carbide, around $2 for Coca Cola; close to 50 cents for General Foods, 50 cents for National Biscuit and [illegible] for Montgomery Ward. Reading Coal's Good Showing

An example of increased earning power through efficient management and equipment modernization is shown in last year's results of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Co. In the face of the warmest Winter in half a century and curtailed industrial demand the company earned 96 cents a share net after all charges and depletion, compared with 73 cents reported for 1930. The financial statement for the year showed working capital position increased with current assets 3½ times current liabilities

Preferred Stocks Gaining in Favor

One of the encouraging features of the stock market of late has been a sharp rise in the price of numerous preferred stocks which still possess a high investment rating. The advance has brought yields down in proportion to a basis substantially under the suspicious by excessive points of last September and December. In a number of cases recently the market has been so thin for preferred stocks with a limited floating supply that purchases of only a few hundred shares have been sufficient to cause a sharp run-up in price. Many brokerage commentators are of the opinion that improved quotations for senior issues will probably prevail as any good general advance in security values.

American Bank Note Dividend Record Broken

Omission of common dividends by American Bank Note breaks a record of continuous disbursements to junior stockholders since the company was organized. Lower activity on security exchanges and reduced demand for the company's products generally have contributed largely to this situation. It furnishes an interesting sidelight on the slump in new security underwritings and stocks reorganizations.

INSURANCE

Partnership Policy Valuable Business Merits Summarized Four Outstanding Values Regarded as Bankable Asset

By Frank F. Loomis

Where an insurable interest exists, business and partnership life insurance has tremendous value. The merits of business life insurance have been summarized as follows:

Life insurance offers an effective and certain method of retiring the interest of a deceased partner or stockholder without disturbing the continuity of a business.

It has four outstanding features of value: First, the nominal cost; second, guaranty of the payment of the capital fund without delay; third, exemption from federal income tax, fourth, protection against loss from the estate, rather than to have the assets of the partnership sold, debts paid, and the net assets distributed.

The deceased partner may die at a most inconvenient time but in a sudden no difference. Due care must be reckoned with and if cash is not available to purchase his interest, all his partners will suffer to a great degree

Particularly is this true where one of the most valuable partners may die. There is a means of providing cash, namely, by insurance on the lives of all the partners. This will make it possible to conserve the assets of the partnership and provide cash to the estate of the deceased partner. There will be no forced liquidation, which invariably means sacrifice prices

* * *

The carrying of partnership life insurance should not be considered an expense. It is really a bankable asset. Creditors and banks view business or partnership life insurance as the most valuable asset as a basis of credit.

As a rule, when a business firm pays an insurance premium whether it is for fire insurance, employers' liability, or even life insurance on the life of an executive or partner, they simply draw a check and charge it up to the insurance account as an expense

This is all wrong when it comes to a life insurance policy being carried on the lives of one or more of the executives or partners. This policy is one that the life insurance policy carries a cash and loan value each year, and the actual cost of carrying the policy is not really not the amount paid in premiums each year, but rather that amount less the increase in cash value that year

For instance, supposing a partner or executive is insured at age 40 for $10,000, with an annual premium of about $325. At the end of the third year the cash or loan value is about $350, at the end of the fourth year, about $540, and at the end of the fifth year, about $730.

Now, if this policy has been in force for five years and $325 had been charged on the books each year as an insurance expense, it would make a total amount paid out on the policy of $1625. On the other side of the ledger, however, at the policy at this time has a cash value of $730, there should be a credit to the insurance account of that amount, and the difference is the actual cost of the policy for five years.

After the policy has been in force for 10 years $3240 has been charged up to the insurance account but at that time the cash or loan value is about $[illegible]. In other words, the actual cost of carrying this policy should not be figured as $325 a year as a business expense, but rather that amount less the increase in cash value each year.

Also, in addition to the cash or loan values every year, the policy participates in the dividend earnings of the company, which will further reduce the yearly cost of the policy, and these dividends will average about 20 per cent of the annual cost in any of the old line legal reserve life insurance companies.

Of course, should the insured partner or executive die at any time, the full face value of the policy is immediately paid to the surviving partners or partner, but should the insured live for many years after the policy has been taken out, the time will come when the cash value of the policy will equal the full amount of premiums paid to the company. These cash or loan values are available at any time on demand if credit is needed,

STOCK PRICES MOSTLY OFF IN BOSTON

Stock prices were mostly off today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange with changes ranged largely to fractions. American Telephone sagged a point to 126, while General Electric eased a major fraction to 20.

Aichison and New Haven each eased at fractionally over a point. Pennsylvania was unchanged from the previous closing price. Boston Elevated was worked on a major fraction to 72.

Gillette was around a point high-er and Nash Motor added a major fraction at 17. General Capital dropped slightly to 18 while United Shoe sold at 38, down a point Thursday's close

SPECTATOR

Says:

The bank rate cut will probably be the news needed to send stocks higher. Though the street has known that the reduction was coming, it was not expected for at least a week yet. Indications now are that efforts will be made to give the market a little play for its psychological effect over the week-end

Good Buying

There has been some good buying on pivotal issues with two leading banking houses reported taking on quite a bundle of stock. The bank rate is cut the first new trading bit" in the administration's repertoire to bolster the price level President Hoover has at least two more, it is understood

Part of the Auburn crowd is said to have switched to Case and Johns-Manville. Whether or not Auburn is "in" is not to say it continues to act badly and should be avoided

Wheat Stories

Among the stories on wheat this last few days was that Tom Howell, the Chicago grain trader, had been called to Washington and commissioned to put the price up to 90 cents a bushel. One broker checked with Palm Beach, where Howell has been vacationing and was told he was on a fishing trip. At that a good deal of commission house buying has been reported in wheat and there's talk of a run-up for the week-end. Then, too, the annual flock of acreage stories, this time with an international tinge, is in circulation.

OFFERS PLAN TO AID PROSPERITY

John W. Scott, treasurer and general manager of Wetmore-Scott Company, associated with Westinghouse as distributors for Metropolitan Boston of all Westinghouse products presented a plan of action to 600 members of the combined Westinghouse-Wetmore Savage-Wetmore Scott organizations last night in his showroom at 533 Commonwealth ave

This plan was enthusiastically received as a means of relieving the unemployment situation

"There is just one way to get this country back to normalcy," said Scott.

"Is believe that it is the duty of every individual in the country to do his part to her security along constructive lines that we will force the return of the conditions that we want

"Our plan is a simple one—calling upon the women members of the family to assist in increasing the efficiency of the man of the house and helping him with his work.

"The Wetmore Scott organization is doing a satisfactory job," he continued. "January figures for 1932 show an increase of 410 per cent in sales over the previous year.

"In January, the retail organization did a 111 per cent of its quota and this quota was 60 per cent above the national average because business conditions in the Metropolitan Boston area are that far ahead of the average of the country.

"The next 60 days are not only most important to the Westinghouse Company but also to this country of ours.

Booms Business

John W. Scott, treasurer and general manager of Wetmore-Scott Co., associated with Westinghouse, who proposes a plan to restore business to normalcy. He asks co-operation of all women in the plan.

PRICES MIXED IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

A fairly firm opening, seen by some as in response to the reduction of the rediscount rate, was quickly followed by some fresh selling.

AUBURN IS LOWER

Early advances, largely fractional, were more than lost by the end of the first half hour, and several issues were off a point or so, including U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, New York Central, Westinghouse and International Match preferred.

Auburn, after rising a point, broke 5. Early gains of a point in Allied Chemical and National Distillers Products were soon lost. Union Pacific rose ½, then reacted.

Reflecting the new financial Federal Reserve Bank rate to 3 per cent from 3½ was regarded as the most important new development with bearing on security prices. Bankers looked upon the action as a distinct evidence of encouragement.

It was reasoned that the combined influences of international gold withdrawals and domestic hoarding had definitely subsided, to permit the reserve bank to fall in line with other efforts to arrest deflation.

EUROPE REACTION GOOD.

Early action of the foreign exchange markets indicated that Europe's reaction to the announcement was favorable with regard to the dollar. Sterling cables quoted it at $3.48¾, off ½ cent, and French francs were ¼ point lower at 3.93¾ cents.

Principal changes shown in the weekly reserve banks statements indicated that while credit deflation was still continuing; there had been further movement of currency back to the banks from the family mattresses. Note circulation decreased another $17,000,000 in the week, bringing to $28,050,000 the reduction scored in the last three weeks.

Brokers' loans declining $10,000,000, again placing the total figure for such loans considerably below the half-billion dollar mark. Standing at $489,000,000 the total was only $3,000,000 above the record low reported as of Feb. 10. The instant figures represented a contraction of $1,309,000,000 in a year, brokers' loans having totaled $1,798,000,000 on Feb. 25, 1931.

CURB MARKET IS SLUGGISH

New York, Feb. 26 (INS)—The majority of curb stocks moved in sluggish fashion in the early half of today's session, with the overnight announcement of the reduction in the New York rediscount rate proving of little help as a market stimulant.

Considerable interest in the utility group was attached to the fluctuations of Niagara Hudson Power, which had just announced a decapitalization plan similar to that of Electric Bond & Share, whereby one new share would be exchanged for three of the present outstanding shares.

This news influenced some moderate pressure in the stock, causing it to slip off fractionally to 6¾. Other leading utility favorites churned around irregularly within fractional distance of their previous closings.

Specialties were featured by a strong demand for Woolworth, Ltd., which rose to the best level of the year at 9½, up ½ point. Aluminium tightened up to 49 for a gain of ¼, while Glen Alden turned downward to touch a new 1932 low at 14, off ½ point fromh its former close.

Oils continued dull, with general lack of interest in evidence. Investment trusts were also neglected by the speculative community, with the few sales in this group taking place at previous closing levels.

WHEAT HIGHER, CORN HARDENS

Chicago, Feb. 26 (AP)—Wheat prices averaged higher early today, influenced by reports that Russia had practically stopped exporting wheat, and was shipping grain into famine stricken home districts.

There were also rumors that Russia had expressed dissatisfaction with Japanese activities relative to Manchuria.

Opening ¼-¾ off to ⅛ up, wheat afterward rose all around. Corn started unchanged to ¼ down and subsequently hardened.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

News item—

MADRID—Deputy Jaurros, noted Spanish alienist, has drafted an amendment to divorce laws providing that any twice-divorced man who attempts to marry a third time must have his head examined. "In all likelihood," says Dr. Jaurros, "a man who repeatedly seeks marriage responsibilities is mentally unbalanced."

They could arrange a simple test. Take the prospective three-time loser to the zoo and see if he'll stick his head in the lion's mouth.

* * *

"American men do as their wives and sweethearts suggest. If the women refused to appear in public with a man who was drinking, or who had been drinking, the men wouldn't drink."—Albert Campione, Italian hotel owner.

Pity the guys who cut up capers. We read about it in the papers.

The gesture futile—

"Don't you think if you'd turn the radio down a little it would sound better?"

MAN OF THE HOUR

This is Norton R. Meltegie, who wishes it made compulsory for all bills payable to be mailed in red envelopes. "Then all the recipient has to do is stamp on them 'Moved—left no address' and return them unopened," says Mr. Meltegie, who is a rubber stamp manufacturer.

FICTION DEPARTMENT

Translated from Broadway Esperanto

Note—Today's short story was written on the backs of 220 cigar bands—220 words. No more. No less.

(With a nervous glance toward D. B.)

Charlie the Chump stood outside of Lindy's restaurant. Now Charlie the Chump is a gold hoarder, and practically all of his front teeth proclaim it because when Charlie the Chump stands outside of Lindy's restaurant, Charlie the Chump fights a duel with himself and chooses a toothpick as a weapon. Furthermore, Charlie the Chump is a snatcher and prefers the kidnaping dodge somewhat more than somewhat.

"Hello, unpchay!" pipes Danny the Dude, as he barges up to C. the C. "How about snatching Mrs. McGillicuddy's husband?"

* * *

"Mrs. McGillicuddy, we have your old man locked up in a swell hotel room," says Charlie the Umpchay. "But we'll send him back to you, and we won't even toast his tootsies, if you'll put a dozen fresh eggs in a bag and drop around some saltdby night."

"You say you have my husband locked in a 'otel room?" cackles Mrs. McGillicuddy.

"Exyes," replies C. the C.

"Well," whispers Mrs. McG., "if you'll just toss the key down an open manhole, I'll give you two dozen eggs and throw in a brand new Plymouth Rock setting hen to boot."

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

—By LOUIS SOBOL—

Bug Bites Ol' Massa Sobol

(At 10:45 p. m. Ol' Massa Sobol flopped into bed and a grand case of grippe, one of those cases—headache, spine-ache, earache and that blahy feeling all over. At 11:15 the city desk hauled him out of bed, "You'll have to add something to your column," he was informed. "You haven't done even half a day's work." Ol' Massa Sobol pleaded, Ol' Massa Sobol went into a columnistic tantrum, but the city desk indicated over the phone that it was shrugging its indifferent shoulders. Mr. Sobol can't write a new lead; Mr. Sobol can't even hold up his head; it's all he can do to dictate this explanation (with epithets that'll probably be red-pencilled) over the telephone. For once the brave old Sobol spirit has wilted. The Ol' Massa's going back to bed.

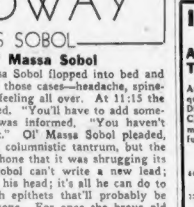
(Heavy chunks, I calls it!)

A telegram from Ziegfeld: "Lupe Velez will be one of my stars . . . With 'Hotcha' . . . Brown and Henderson do not write for the sophisticated few, but for the masses . . . No truth in rumor that I am to take the Earl Carroll Theater" . . . From George Stone: "Here's a laugh. The strikers being locked up and hauled off in the pie wagon last week kept singing, 'We want Cantor' . . . A long suicide note from a girl who simply signs herself "Jennifer" . . . In her early twenties, attractive (she says) and "judging from outward appearances, I have everything to live for . . ." She wrote special articles for the late Morning World — went on the stage and the future appeared glamorous. . . . "Then a well-known producer became interested in me and made the usual advances. I turned him down flatly. Instead of resenting it, he merely didn't engage me for his next play, and when he parted he said: 'You have talent, breeding and intelligence, but so have lots of other girls on Broadway. Competition is keen. If you really want to succeed, get yourself an influential man and hold on to him.' Etc., etc." She recounts similar experiences and concludes: "This morning I sold my $185 evening wrap for $15. When that money is gone—well! There's only one solution—and I'm not afraid."



"Reading your column Monday," protests Martha Graham, "I was suddenly struck between the eyes by one of your statements—pertaining to the unfortunates who have to seek their entertainment at Oakland's Terrace. (I never said 'unfortunates'). What, dear man, gives you the impression of half-naked dancing girls? Bored, maybe, Louis, but never awed. Even commuters know the sublime from the ridiculous. How is it that all you so-called writers have an idea that you and the people with whom you mix are the only sophisticates in the world? I've seen more of the celebrities you mention, and outside of being cheap and common-looking, there's nothing to distinguish them from the saleslades and salesmen in the cheaper department stores" . . . "I note," notes Sam Mishkin, "Your reference to the Weber and Fields' bill of long ago. What you ought to do is get hold of Jim Thornton and have him tell you some old-time stuff. For instance, when Ethel Graham and Lillian Conrad (I may have the surname twisted) shot Stokes, of the Ansonia, and Hammerstein billed them upon their release. At the Victoria, I asked Thornton, in the wings at the time, what he thought of the act, and it was then that he made his famous and much-quoted reply: "They'll have to go to Washington and shoot the President to work next week for Hammerstein.'"

A few pages from the current D. A. C. News of Detroit, one of the country's better mags with Burton Rascoe's effusive contribution regarding the ability of Mister Sobol as a writer . . . "Sobol has no aptitude for word inventions or slang . . . Sobol uses ponderous and unamusing adjectives . . . There is a strained effect in Sobol when he neglects to be himself; when he is straightforward, candid, and himself, he is wistfully amusing and effective" . . . Remind me to be straightforward, candid, and above all, Leona, myself . . . "I used to watch Sobol daily," writes George Bricker, in the current New York Amusements, "as he sorted his mail and read it, as he answered myriad telephone calls, as he knocked out his daily stint of type. I wondered then, as I do now, whether he thought it was worth the gruelling efforts he put into it."

P. McGovern, Jr., of Jersey City, forwards some Jean Harlow data . . . "When she was playing here," he writes, "she used to make her changes right in the wings. When my pal, the usher, went back stage to have her autograph her picture, which, incidentally, she signs across her white hair something like this: 'Regards to So-and-So, from sweet Jean Harlow' . . . what do you suppose? She sat on a satin pillow on the floor of her room, shooting craps with a spotlight mechanic and an assistant stage engineer—and lost. When she came back from her turn on the stage, she rolled the dice again and won all her dough back and plenty more."

MAN IN A CRASH KILLS SELF

Indiana Harbor, Ind., Feb. 26 (AP)—A young motorist who figured in a minor collision early today shot and killed himself a few minutes later without explanations.

It was not a serious accident. The driver of the other car, a woman, was shaken, but not injured. The man, about 30, got out of his car without assistance. Several passersby asked if he were hurt.

"Leave me alone," he answered sharply. Then he drew a pistol from his pocket, put the weapon to his head and killed himself with one shot.

In his car police found an automatic rifle, two boxes of cartridges for the rifle and 20 cartridges for the pistol. Papers in his pockets bore the name Harold McCoy and indicated he purchased the car Dec. 10 in Hammond, Ind., giving his address as 2118 Mahoney rd., Canton, O.

Science Battles to Save Life of Zoo's $10,000 Gorilla

Washington, Feb. 26 (AP)—The cold that ailed N'gi, the baby gorilla of the National Zoo, has turned to pneumonia, and science is literally fighting in the dark to save the much-loved little black simian who is insured for $10,000.

An oxygen tank has been installed in N'gi's cage. Adrenalin and strychnine have been administered, but the doctors have no way of telling whether they are doing any good.

They cannot take N'gi's temperature, and lack of records keeps them from knowing whether the pulse rate of 120 and respiration rate of 40 are near normal or not.

Ely and Guy Can Do It, With Legislature's Help

More than $100,000,000 has been isolated from the people of Massachusetts by the difficulties of the banking institutions forced to close by frozen assets.

The State has a very evident and a very grave responsibility in this matter. And that responsibility is to return dollar for dollar to every depositor in so far as that is possible, and as quickly as it is humanly possible to do so.

In many cases they were the total of life savings accumulated by years of labor.

In many cases they were the difference between success and failure of small merchants and manufacturers.

* * *

These people deposited their money in good faith. They assumed their savings were safe because the banks were under the supervision of the State and the State examiners.

They are entitled to a complete liquidation of the banks without the liquidating expenses which have attained the proportions of a scandal in the past.

The State and its agents, including Governor Ely and Bank Commissioner Guy, must avail themselves of every measure of relief that is available.

* * *

The purpose of that corporation is to rejuvenate closed banks when possible and to assist in their speedy and thorough liquidation when possible. The sum of $200,000,000 is made available "for relief of banks that are closed or in the process of liquidation."

The assets of these closed banks can not now be sold under conditions of the market. First mortgages on homes and real estate are a drug on the market. To dispose of these mortgages under present conditions would be unjust to the banks, unjust to their officers and stockholders, unjust to the innocent depositors and especially unjust to the home and property owners.

The Bank Commissioner should be empowered to pool these real estate assets and secure reasonable loans on them from this new agency known as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

* * *

Liquid money will thus be supplied the closed banks. Some of them may be enabled to reopen their doors and resume business without loss. Depositors and mortgagors can be benefited.

Governor Ely and the Bank Commissioner may find that a law will have to be enacted to permit the Bank Commissioner and the liquidating agents to negotiate these loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

If so, they should demand that the Legislature enact that law at once. They will find the Legislature eager to comply with their demand. The people require relief and here is one means that should not be ignored.

Baker's Japanese Boycott A "Sure Way to War"

Newton D. Baker's new pair of "spring heel" League of Nations gum shoes, that he now wears for 1932 campaign purposes, do not conceal the cloven hoofs of his internationalism.

He, like all the other internationalists who have half-heartedly abandoned the League of Nations for reasons of expediency, is still dominated by the passion for foreign entanglements.

Wherefore Mr. Baker, availing himself of the first opportunity for meddling in foreign affairs that has presented since his recent back-tracking on the League of Nations issue, promptly proposes that the United States Government pursue a course of action which, in the opinion of the soundest thinkers in the Senate, WOULD BE TANTAMOUNT TO A DECLARATION OF WAR.

The ink scarcely dry upon his announcement that he would not seek to put the United States into the League of Nations until American public opinion favored the adherence of this Government to the League, the petition which he has now signed, and which has been presented to the President in favor of a war-making boycott against Japan, reveals Mr. Baker as deliberately seeking to influence that American public opinion upon which, according to his own statement, he was willing to wait until it should, of its own accord, become favorable to membership in the League.

It is a fortunate thing for the American people that Newton D. Baker has to SEND his war-making petitions to the White House.

If he were actually in the White House he could put his boycott into effect BY AN EXECUTIVE PROCLAMATION.

Mr. Baker would then have his boycott—AND THE COUNTRY WOULD HAVE THE WAR.

Our New Movie Theater

John L. Sullivan used to hold court there amid a throng of hero worshippers when he could "lick" any man in the world with his two hands.

Calvin Coolidge, a different type, and more important one, lived there when Governor. In his modest room, he was informed of his election as Vice-President, the step to his greater height and greater service.

Murray Crane, from a private room upstairs, gave out orders in his quiet way affecting the interests of people everywhere, including the sporting fraternity downstairs who didn't know his power and who wouldn't know his name unless it appeared on the racing charts.

Those who made history then will be supplanted on the screen by those who are making it today in every corner of the world. We will see them, hear them and believe we know much more about it.

Boston is interested in the authors of this theater adventure who, as Governor Ely said, "had the courage of high order in times like these to prepare and open this new enterprise." They displace fear with confidence. They furnish employment to a large corps of people who otherwise would be idle.

Typos Care for Their Own

President Moriarty of the Boston Central Labor Union informs us that the Typographical Union have expended $2,000,000 for relief of their own in New York City alone. In Boston they have done as well in proportion to their membership. Moreover, they have responded to the other numerous appeals to charity which have been made upon them and in which they had only the general interest of mutual humanity. The time of depression, which, we hope, is behind us, has produced its heroes in every field of life.

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Feb. 26—Thoughts while strolling: Nothing stirs me like soldiers marching to war to a rousing band. Marlene Dietrich and Gilda Gray bear a resemblance. Geraldine Farrar lovelier than ever with iron gray hair. No dog can be so pully or curl up so cuddly as a Boston Harry Tierney, a Perth Amboy, N. J., boy, who made good in the city. The Ritz starter who is a double for Oscar Shaw. Why doesn't the navy let sailors tell time the regular way? One-word description of Ring Lardner—startled. Baron Wrangel, who has become a society editor. And looks like Clifton Webb.

Everyone visiting Paris tells of a night on the loose with Ernest Hemenway. They're like four-flushers "like that" with Jimmy Walker. Eddie Foy, Jr., looks more and more like his dad. Those enormous motor cars purring with suppressed desire. Who remembers Moretti's 50-cent dinners, vin compris?

The Mute Marx brother is said to be a chatterbox in real life. That speakeasy impresario who sports a light gray suit and a deep purple tie. Another of my favorite people—Hamish McLaurin. Dick Berlin is always on the verge of a chuckle. And we need chucklers these days. Beryl Wallace.

Dr. John Finley, the city's greatest walker. What I could do to a hatful of Philadelphia's well-spiced scrapple! Ted Saucier, of the Waldorf, has the blackest hair in town.

Arthur William Brown and Rube Goldberg rushing somewhere. O, for a banana skin! DeQuincey must have had fun writing his stuff. Life's Harry Evans is one of the town's best raconteurs. And have you ever seen Billy Gaxton do that superb mimicry of Mayor Walker and Sid Solomon at that corner Casino table?

* * *

Table talk turned to Edna St. Vincent Millay. "Her pen," cooed an admirer, "is a feather." Another added: "A feather wafted by zephyrs." It was too swift for me so I bore down heavily on the gravy sopping.

* * *

The indignant whorl of wind twirling around the Flatiron corner plays queer pranks on metropolitan innocents. It once lifted Raymond Hitchcock's hat upward five stories and sucked it into a window. The other morning it spiraled a lady's umbrella skyward, then miraculously closed and dropped it, plummet-like, at her feet. She re-opened it and went blithely on her way. Fun in the city!

* * *

Variety, a news association and several syndicated releases recently chronicled that severe "mike fright" kept me from 13 broadcasts at $1,500 a throw. They are only partially correct. The offers have topped that sum by large margins. I have heard many writers flop on the air, yet the microphone offers no morbid anxiety whatever for me. I am just determined that when my time comes to flop, I'm going to flop in a big way. Toss your radio out the window now.

* * *

* * *

Squire Mauck, a home-town editor, tells of a city motorist demanding the way along a country road of a mossback. The latter thought a moment and said: "Drive to the left a half mile, no, I expect you'd better keep on straight until you come to the first lane." The motorist snapped: "You don't seem to know much about directions"—and started on. The greenhorn called after him: "Well, I ain't lost."

* * *

From S. F.: "You were born simple and don't try to outwit Nature. Those $80 words, for instance, such as charioteer for chauffeur. I doubt you know the meaning of chariot.

Just Folks

Old and Young

Time was that she romped in the heyday of youth
And mocked at all preachings of wisdom and truth.
Time was that she danced till the dawn of the day
When her world was all lovely and life was all play,
But now there are children who cling to her knee,

Her voice is forever reminding: "Beware!"
Her last words at parting are always: "Take care!"
That mother devoted has temples which burn

O playmates of mine in the days which are fled
How lightly we laughed at the warnings they said,
How we chuckled to hear them advise what to wear
And tossed back our heads at that parting: "Take care!"

Daily Bible Text— "For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord."—Isaiah, ch. iv, v. 8.

The European Debts Again; and Trade

By Claude G. Bowers

THE PLAN of selfish interests, flying hypocritically the flag of humanity, to transfer the debts of European nations to the taxpayers of this country has by no means been abandoned. In his address on Washington's birthday in Paris, Ambassador Edge said rather cryptically:

"The United States has very clearly manifested its willingness to co-operate where co-operation may be productive of constructive results, and to concede where concession may be conducive to progress and stability."

That is all.

But New York newspapers headline the speech with an interpretation of the meaning to be that we still have "an open mind on debts."

From Washington comes this interpretation:

"It was construed as being intended as another warning to Europe to put her own financial house in order before looking to the United States to revise debts owed to this country. This was accepted here as meaning that the United States might be prepared to consider revision of debt-funding agreements with European governments on the basis of capacity to pay."

Since Congress has specifically and emphatically taken its stand against anything of the sort, it must be the President and Mr. Stimson and Mr. Mills who still have an open mind on the proposition enormously to increase the tax burdens of the American people to make the burdens on other peoples less onerous.

* * *

We Play the Good Samaritan?

No one would suspect from this toploftical statement that there is anything wrong with the finances of the United States; that we have a deficit greater than that of England; that the embarrassment just now in meeting the necessities of government here is to find something more that can be taxed; that economically we are prostrate; that millions of our people are in desperate poverty.

There is a great deal of the devil reproving sin in the smug suggestion that when Europe has found a way to meet her governmental obligations, she may come to us, who are struggling with the problem of how to meet our own, and propose that we play the good Samaritan and add the debts of fourteen nations to our own obligations.

* * *

A War on Women and Children

There are ways in which we can co-operate with other nations for the common benefit of all; but we are hearing very little about these other ways.

Prosperity depends primarily on trade; and in these days, on international trade; and the curse of the world today is that barriers against international trade are being erected everywhere—and to the detriment of every nation. These barriers are prohibitive tariff walls—and we have forced these on the world.

The raising of these barriers against trade followed the enactment of the Smoot-Hawley tariff act. We started the war—for it is war; and the war will go on until we co-operate with other nations in the interest of economic common sense.

And this war here is having millions of casualties—in unemployed men. It is contributing its full share to human misery. No bombs are being dropped, but there is wreckage in the factories. And it is war on women and children.

"The Purple Heart"

President Hoover, commemorating the bicentennial of Washington's birth, has revived "The Order of the Purple Heart," a decoration for gallantry established by Washington in 1782. In its modern form, it will be of gold with a purple enamel center. It is authorized for enlisted men of the army.

This is most praiseworthy action, as far as it goes. And now, if Mr. Hoover will also authorize a few enlisted men for the army it will be perfect. The one drawback to the decoration now is that there is hardly anybody to wear it.

The El Wage Scale

When it comes to the making of a new wage schedule, the officials and employes of the Boston Elevated must be expected to be amiable and patient. They must be expected to resent and repel any vicious efforts to stir antagonism between them. Since this railway is now under the system of public operation, its officers and employes have a singular obligation to the public as a whole. They have won the co-operation of the public in very trying times. They must bend every effort to maintain it. Knowing the leaders of both sides, we expect they will.
